

A Time For

09/27/26

Ecclesiastes 3: ____ - ____

What do we _____ from all our _____ ?

The teacher is _____ the limits of _____ control.

We can _____ that God is doing something without being able to _____ everything God is doing.

We see _____ at a time.

God Sees the _____.

Romans 8: ____

I do not have to _____ every season to
_____ in this season.

Proverbs 16: ____

Can I _____ God with this _____ ?

A Time For

09/27/26

Ecclesiastes 3: ____ - ____

What do we _____ from all our _____ ?

The teacher is _____ the limits of _____ control.

We can _____ that God is doing something without being able to _____ everything God is doing.

We see _____ at a time.

God Sees the _____.

Romans 8: ____

I do not have to _____ every season to
_____ in this season.

Proverbs 16: ____

Can I _____ God with this _____ ?

[illegible]

- 1. What season am I in right now? Is this a time of beginning or ending, building or tearing down, laughter or grief, holding on or letting go? What would it look like to honestly name this season instead of wishing I were somewhere else?
- 2. Where am I struggling to release control? Am I depending on my plans, timelines, or explanations to give me peace? What would change if I trusted that God sees the whole story even though I can only see this moment?
- 3. What gift from God can I receive with gratitude today? Have uncertainty, disappointment, or longing for the next season caused me to overlook what God is giving me now? What ordinary gift—such as a meal, meaningful work, laughter, rest, or time with someone I love—can I pause to notice and enjoy?
- 4. What is my faithful next step in this season? Do I need to grieve honestly, ask for help, release something, have a difficult conversation, wait patiently, or move forward in faith? How can I take that step while trusting God with everything I still cannot see or understand?

[illegible]

- 1. What season am I in right now? Is this a time of beginning or ending, building or tearing down, laughter or grief, holding on or letting go? What would it look like to honestly name this season instead of wishing I were somewhere else?
- 2. Where am I struggling to release control? Am I depending on my plans, timelines, or explanations to give me peace? What would change if I trusted that God sees the whole story even though I can only see this moment?
- 3. What gift from God can I receive with gratitude today? Have uncertainty, disappointment, or longing for the next season caused me to overlook what God is giving me now? What ordinary gift—such as a meal, meaningful work, laughter, rest, or time with someone I love—can I pause to notice and enjoy?
- 4. What is my faithful next step in this season? Do I need to grieve honestly, ask for help, release something, have a difficult conversation, wait patiently, or move forward in faith? How can I take that step while trusting God with everything I still cannot see or understand?