

Gregory J. Esper, MD, MBA
President, Emory Health Plan
Professor of Neurology
Emory University

Gregory Esper, MD, MBA is Professor of Neurology at Emory University School of Medicine and is a general neurologist. He earned his medical degree at Vanderbilt University, completed neurology residency at Washington University St. Louis, and finished clinical neurophysiology fellowship and a clinical research fellowship at Harvard University's Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center. He earned his MBA from Emory's Goizueta Business School in 2009. Dr. Esper has been recognized in Emory's Physician Group Practice as a Diamond Provider, earning 99%ile patient satisfaction ratings.

Dr. Esper serves Emory University as the President of the Emory Health Plan, which is the self-funded plan for approximately 35,000 employees of Emory University and Emory Healthcare and almost 63,000 total beneficiaries. He previously served Emory Healthcare (EHC) as Senior Vice President of Finance and Chief Clinical Financial Officer (2023-2025) and as Associate Chief Medical Officer and Vice President of Lean Promotion (2018-2023).

He is currently a member of the Board of Directors for the American Academy of Neurology and AAN Institute. Dr. Esper enjoys an appointment as Affiliated Professor of Business Administration at Emory University. He has published and lectured on such topics as telemedicine, lean implementation in healthcare, health care reform, value-based care, medical economics, leadership, and talent management.