

RHONDA JORDAN

Rhonda Jordan serves as executive vice president and chief human resources officer for Virtua Health, a leading $2 billion health system in New Jersey with more than 15,000 colleagues. With over three decades of experience in human resources and organizational leadership, Rhonda is a driving force behind Virtua's people strategy—aligning talent with business growth, elevating the colleague experience, and cultivating a culture of excellence.

In her role, Rhonda oversees all facets of human resources, including talent management, organizational culture, leadership development, and talent acquisition. She is a passionate advocate for creating workplaces where every voice is valued and every individual feels seen, heard, and empowered. Her leadership has sparked initiatives that foster belonging and build a deeply engaged workforce.

Under Rhonda's guidance, Virtua Health has consistently earned accolades as a top employer, including recognition on Forbes' America's Best Employers list and Modern Healthcare's Best Places to Work. Her commitment to colleague well-being, continuous learning, and inclusive community-building has helped shape Virtua's signature "culture of we"—a collaborative, values-driven environment where people thrive.

Rhonda's impact extends beyond Virtua. She was named one of Becker's "99 Hospital and Health System CHROs and Chief People Officers to Know," a testament to her influence in shaping the future of healthcare leadership. She also appears on Becker's "DEI Health Care Leaders to Know" list and has been honored as one of South Jersey Biz's "Women to Watch," a Diversity Leader in Business by the Philadelphia Business Journal, and a "Women Who Empower" honoree by the African American Chamber of Commerce of New Jersey.

Her career includes leadership roles at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia and other esteemed institutions. Rhonda is a certified senior human resources professional, a master coach, and Six Sigma Green Belt trained. She holds a bachelor's degree from Lamar University and a master's degree from Capella University.

A steadfast champion of women in leadership, Rhonda serves on the boards of Junior Achievement of New Jersey, the Workforce Development Board of Burlington County, and the Center for Ambulatory and Minimally Invasive Surgery. She is also an active member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., continuing her lifelong commitment to service, empowerment, and excellence.