

Blake Corbitt, MPP,
Chief Financial Officer,
Dwight D. Eisenhower Army Medical Center

As the Chief Financial Officer of the Dwight David Eisenhower Army Medical Center, Blake Corbitt plays a key role in shaping the organization’s strategic direction through expert oversight of budgeting, manpower utilization, and operational performance. With a focus on data-driven decision-making, Corbitt leads comprehensive analyses of departmental efficiency, funding burn rates, and coding accuracy to strengthen the hospital’s financial health and advance cost-saving initiatives.

Previously, Corbitt served for more than two years as Chief Financial Officer at the Brian D. Allgood Army Community Hospital in South Korea. In that role, he advised both the hospital CEO and leadership of the 65th Medical Brigade on critical areas including manpower planning, hiring, budget formulation, billing, and overall financial stewardship—directly supporting mission success across the region.

A collaborative leader and skilled communicator, Corbitt is proficient in Microsoft Excel, Power BI, and the Microsoft Office suite, bringing a strong analytical foundation to every aspect of fiscal management and organizational performance.