

Philip Atoyebi, MD, MPH, MBA, FACHE

Corporate Director, Quality Strategy & Operations
Emory Healthcare

Philip is a faith-driven healthcare executive whose leadership is grounded in compassion, gratitude, and a deep commitment to service. As Corporate Director of Quality Strategy & Operations at Emory Healthcare, he leads enterprise-wide quality governance, patient safety, and performance improvement strategy across an 11-hospital academic health system. His work centers on building scalable quality infrastructure, advancing high-reliability operations, and driving measurable improvements in mortality, regulatory performance, and value-based outcomes through data-driven analytics and strong clinical–operational alignment.

With a background in clinical medicine and advanced training in public health and business, Philip partners closely with clinicians and senior leaders to translate strategy into sustainable results. He is passionate about equitable, patient-centered care, inclusive leadership, and mentoring the next generation of healthcare executives. An active leader within the American College of Healthcare Executives (ACHE), he is a Fellow of ACHE, serves on the ACHE of Georgia Board, chairs the Membership Growth and Satisfaction Committee, and serves as an adjunct professor in the Health Policy and Management Department at Emory University’s Rollins School of Public Health. He remains a committed contributor to professional development and healthcare thought leadership across Georgia and nationally.

Philip earned his MD from the University of Ibadan, Nigeria, his MPH from West Chester University of Pennsylvania, and his MBA from the University of Georgia. He holds multiple quality and regulatory credentials, including Certified Professional in Healthcare Quality (CPHQ), Certified Joint Commission Professional (CJCP), and Lean Six Sigma Green Belt certification from the Institute of Industrial and Systems Engineers.
