

Theresa Cerulli, M.D. is a graduate of Tufts University, University of Massachusetts Medical School, the Harvard Longwood Psychiatry Residency Training Program, and Harvard Fellowships in Medical Psychiatry and Neuropsychiatry. She is Board Certified in Psychiatry and is on staff at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center in Boston and Hallmark Health's Lawrence Memorial Hospital. Dr. Cerulli has continued her role as a member of the Harvard Medical School faculty and Clinical Instructor for the residency program. Her private group practice, Cerulli and Associates, is located in North Andover, MA.

Dr. Cerulli received the 1997 Harvard Residency Teaching Award and has published several journal articles in the Harvard Review of Psychiatry and the Journal of Medicine. She is the co-founder and prior Chief Medical Officer of ADD Health and Wellness Centers and was previously Medical Director of the Hallowell Center. Dr. Cerulli serves nationally as an expert witness for AD/HD legal cases, is a Professional Advisory Board Member for the Adult Attention Deficit Disorder Association (ADDA) and works as a consultant and speaker for Shire, Eli Lilly, and Novartis Pharmaceuticals in their CNS Divisions.

Dr. Cerulli has appeared on numerous television programs on AD/HD including Urban Update, ABC and WMUR Evening News, and CH 56 Health Watch. Her other media appearances include interviews with local radio stations, as well as several newspaper and magazine articles. She volunteers as a Medical Advisory Board member of Kiwi magazine and is listed in the "Guide to America's Top Psychiatrists", 2008 Edition.

To learn more about Dr. Cerulli and her work, visit <http://cerulliandassociates.com>.