

Mark Kawate is a 20 year veteran of experimenting with cutting-edge technology to develop responsible businesses and non-profit organizations. Starting at 12 years of age, Mark worked multiple technology trade-shows, spanning the globe yearly, where he developed the desire to change the world using technology. Growing up, Mark's personal hero was Ben Carson (Neurosurgeon from Johns Hopkins); prompting a fervent "hobby" of neuroscience when later diagnosed with ADHD (inactive-subtype). Mark also studied International Business at the University of Washington in Seattle. These unique life experiences have made him extremely passionate in his research aimed at finding innovative technological multi-pronged management approaches for ADHD as well as other neurological disorders and imbalances.

You can find him on the web at twitter.com/ADHDapps, ADHDapps.me, and facebook.com/ADHDApps.