Cambridge, Mass. — The American Repertory Theatre present the Resident Acting Company at Zero Arrow Club in When it’s Hot, it’s COLE! — a cabaret featuring the sparkling, sexy songs of Cole Porter. Performances will take place at the Zero Arrow Club, corner of Arrow Street and Massachusetts Avenue, Harvard Square, from Thursday, June 26 through Sunday, July 20. and will be available for press viewing from Saturday, June 28 at 8:00pm.

“Birds do it. Bees do it. Even educated fleas do it. Let’s do it, let’s fall in love.”

“Night and Day,” “You’re the Top,” “Love for Sale,” “Too Darn Hot” — some of the cleverest, funniest, and most romantic songs ever written were penned by Cole Porter. He was unmatched as a tunesmith, and his Broadway musicals — from Kiss Me Kate and Anything Goes to Silk Stockings and Can Can — set the standards of style and wit to which today’s composers and lyricists aspire. Conceived (with musical arranger Peter Bayne) and directed by A.R.T. Institute Director Scott Zigler, the revue of Cole’s favorites will feature A.R.T. Company members Remo Airaldi, Thomas Derrah, Will LeBow, and Karen MacDonald — whose performances in last summer’s A Marvelous Party! The Noël Coward Celebration was a runaway critical and audience success — and graduating A.R.T. Institute actor Angela Nahigian. They will regale audiences with the abovementioned songs, as well as many others, including “Let’s Do It (Let’s Fall in Love),” “I’ve Got You Under My Skin,” and “It’s De-Lovely.” Musical directions is by Miranda Loud, costume design by Hilary Hacker, lighting design by Margo Caddell, and sound design by David Remedios.

Born in Peru, Indiana, in 1891 to a wealthy family, Cole Porter studied music from an early age, and began composing as a teenager. After high school he attended Yale University and went on to law school at Harvard University, though his main interest remained in music. While at Harvard he continued to write and a number of his pieces were used in Broadway musicals. In 1916, his first musical, See America First, was a flop and closed after only fifteen performances. Porter joined the French Foreign Legion and served in North Africa, carrying a portable piano on his back and entertaining friends with improvised songs. He received the Croix de Guerre decoration from the French Government for keeping high the morale of his regiment, and when America entered World War I, he taught French gunnery to American troops. After the war,
Porter married Linda Lee Thomas of the Social Register and settled in Paris, entertaining lavishly in their palatial home. This was the beginning of his lifelong affection for the city, which he would return to in songs such as “You Don’t Know Paree” and “I Love Paris.” During his time abroad Porter contributed to many musicals including Hitchy-Koo and The Greenwich Village Follies. It wasn’t, however, until his song “Let’s Do It, Let’s Fall In Love” appeared in the 1928 musical Paris, that he had his first big hit.

A contemporary of George Gershwin, Richard Rogers, and Jerome Kern, Porter’s urbane wit and musical complexity won him the affection of the nation. Songs such as “What Is This Thing Called Love,” “I Get A Kick Out of You,” and “Too Darn Hot,” became instant hits and have remained classics. While his name was associated with many of these upbeat songs, a more melancholy side could be seen in the wonderful “Miss Otis Regrets” and “Ev’ry Time We Say Goodbye”.

Despite a horseback riding accident in 1937 that crippled him for life, Porter produced much of his best work in the 1940s and 50s. He wrote hundreds of songs for dozens of Broadway shows, movie musicals, and television specials. His most successful musical, Kiss Me Kate, opened in 1948 and ran for over a thousand performances. A recluse in his later years, Porter died in California in 1964. Today his legacy lives on in productions of his musicals and in recordings of artists such as Ella Fitzgerald, Frank Sinatra, and Lena Horne.
