To whom it may concern,

Oregon State University recommends Matthew Liszewski for a 2019 Western Seed Association scholarship. Matt grew up outside of Salem, Oregon and has a strong agricultural background. He is presently employed with one of the largest farming operations in Oregon's Willamette Valley. Matt is a senior in the Crop and Soil Science Department and in excellent academic standing. Upon graduating with his Bachelor's Degree, he plans to continue serving the Oregon seed industry as an agronomist.

Matt has also demonstrated a tremendous passion for the agriculture industry through his extracurricular activities. Matt has served as the Vice-President of our student-led Crops Club for the past two years and has recently been elected to the Presidency. As President, one of Matt's primary initiatives is to expand the Club's current educational and networking opportunities to include specialty crop production tours and additional high school education events.

On behalf of the Oregon State University Crop and Soil Science Scholarship Committee, thank you for your support of emerging leaders in the agronomy industry, including Matt Liszewski.

Sincerely,

Alyssa DuVal, Instructor
