

We have chosen Aaron Doxon who is a senior Agronomy student focusing on Integrated Crop Management. He has actively participated in university clubs from the start of his academic career, winning team and individual awards and has volunteered for community events. He has made the Dean's List and is an honors society member as a result of his academic achievement. He is currently completing his internship and working to support his family. He plans to work towards owning his own agronomy and irrigation business after graduation.
