The curriculum features six sessions (up to 20 hours of content), allowing educators to engage students in ongoing conversations to help develop long-term safety and civility skills. Developed jointly by the ROBLOX Education team in collaboration with Laura Higgins, an expert with over 20 years in online safety and civility who leads ROBLOX™s Digital Civility Initiative, this new course is designed to better serve the needs of educators who can freely access ROBLOX™s ISTE-certified curriculum to support virtual learning during this ever-changing time.

If your kids are playing ROBLOX, it's likely they would have played Minecraft too. ROBLOX is a mix of Minecraft and Lego allowing people to play games designed by others, as well as being able to create games too.

We™ve been hearing from our educator community that it™s simply not enough to have occasional conversations about safety and digital civility and that they™d greatly benefit from a structured curriculum and project-based learning as the new school year begins and kids are spending more and more time learning and interacting with one another online, said Laura Higgins, Director of Community Safety and Digital Civility at ROBLOX. The curriculum launching today is designed to provide both educators and students with a self-paced, topic-specific narrative that will help build a generation of resilient digital citizens and ensure kids and teens have positive and safe online experiences.

ROBLOX Studios, the program used to create and program games in ROBLOX, features a simplified graphical interface, objects, and the ability to adjust the properties of everything in the game. This drastically lowers the barrier of entry and allows anyone to make their own games.
