 Other. Explain:

In recent protests in the Pacific Northwest and around the US an increasingly common tactic of demonstrators and rioters has been the use of laser pointers against line officers. These lasers are easily accessible and affordable and can the following symptoms. Flash blindness, dazzle, dark spots, hazy vision, burns, retinal bleeding often followed by headaches and dizziness. Our FPS personnel saw these lasers used firsthand in Portland and had discussions with Seattle Police Officers who felt the effects on the first night of rioting and then utilized laser resistant safety glasses and expressed that they were very effective. While several manufacturers make lenses that defeat the effects of these lasers specifically designed for Law Enforcement and aviators; the Revision FT-2 Laser Protective Eyewear model provides a broader laser protection to include protection from Green, Blue and Violet laser light. The FT-2 has adequate visible light transmission and FPS has also had reports of violet laser use during these demonstrations creating the need for the broader protection. Revision Hawk was the provider of the rest of FPS head gear; therefore, the Revision Hawk Stingerhawk FT-2 Eyewear is made to to works with the helmets that FPS utilizes. The Stingerhawk FT-2 Laser Protective Eyewear provide the needed protection for the laser wavelength of concern, the feature wrap around protection and ballistic protection required for law enforcement operations. Market Research shows that there are no distributors of the lens; they are only available from the manufacturer.
