Theme | THINKING THINGS THROUGH AS WESLEYANS

As communicators of the unchanging good news about the grace of God shown most clearly in Jesus Christ, we often find ourselves among people who yearn for simplistic answers to far-reaching and previously unimagined questions.

In our own desire to give comfort in an uncomfortable world and/or in our discomfort about things that aren't the way that they should be, we may be tempted to give less than the whole counsel of God. In the "comfort" scenario, we may dull the edge of truth. Our fear and frustration may cause us to give truth without grace.

Providing people with helpful teaching that isn't more complicated than necessary requires careful, multi-dimensional reflection. While we need to be as straight-forward ("simple") as possible, we cannot afford to be "simplistic."

Wesleyans are committed to The Person who "dwelt among us full of grace and truth." We come to the task of theology as people with warm hearts and cool heads. In the 2013 lectures and workshops, our underlying question is going to be: "How do Wesleyans do theology?"

About our Speakers | JOHN VLAINIC & AMY CASWELL BRATTON

John Vlainic is well known among us as a thinker and reader of theology. In our opening session, John will take us through a presentation that will help us understand what elements Wesleyans consider when they are thinking ... about a critical issue ... or preparing next Sunday's sermon.

Amy Caswell Bratton is a respected, young scholar who has devoted considerable time understanding and writing about the doctrine of Christian Perfection. On Wednesday night, she will open up the beauty of this doctrine to help us see how important a vision for holiness is for God's people.

But in your hearts revere Christ as Lord. Always be prepared to give an answer to everyone who asks you to give the reason for the hope that you have. But do this with gentleness and respect, keeping a clear conscience ...
1 Peter 3:15-16a
