Preface

The British Institute of Recorded Sound (BIRS) was formed in 1947 by Patrick Saul, a record collector who believed that libraries should collect and preserve sound recordings and endeavored to make it a national priority. Initially the institute focused on commercial records of art music, but quickly expanded in scope to include wildlife recordings, ethnographic recordings, broadcast recordings, and all types of commercial records.

In 1956 the institute began publishing the Bulletin, the first English-language journal devoted to preserving and studying audio. In 1961 the format was updated and the name changed to Recorded Sound. Articles span the range of topics appropriate to a comprehensive national collection - from Elgar to Whiteman, from insect sounds to Dutch electronic music studios. In the years before the Association for Recorded Sound Collections (ARSC) was formed in the United States, the BIRS publications documented the formation of some of the most treasured institutional audio collections, including those of the New York Public Library and Stanford, Yale and Indiana Universities.

BIRS merged with the British Library in April 1983 to form the National Sound Archive. Recorded Sound was discontinued the next year, citing rising costs and an overly broad scope.
Editor’s note

The first twelve issues of Recorded Sound were numbered in the Vol. / No. format common for academic journals, but volume 2 began with “Vol. 2, No. 9” and the volume numbering was dropped entirely beginning with issue 13. The issues are listed here by issue number only for simplicity’s sake, but I thought this was worth noting in case a reader has seen a reference to an issue in this format.

Most issues contain an editorial, book reviews and abstracts, as well as various announcements and advertisements. These were omitted from the date index.

The subject index is presented in three sections, the first two being taken directly from Recorded Sound issues 44 and 72, the third adapted by me from the date index in the absence of a published subject index.

This index covers all articles, abstracts and book reviews published in the Bulletin (*1–*18) and Recorded Sound (*1–44). References preceded by an asterisk are to the Bulletin. Alphabetisation is, regardless of stops, letter by letter; but single author entries precede joint author entries; reviews follow these; and subject entries come last.

Book titles are italicised, the titles of abstracts are enclosed within inverted commas and titles not so indicated denote articles in the Bulletin or Recorded Sound.

An attempt has been made to index other important references, and to categorise the subject-matter of all these references in ways that may be of help. A few words have been excluded from the index (except when they begin a title) in order to save space; these words are: disc, gramophone, instrument, LP, long-playing, music(al), phonograph (as a synonym for 'gramophone'), record(ing), 78rpm and sound.

In this index numbers in bold indicate the issue. Abbreviations: ed edited; rev review

Index to Recorded Sound 45-72

This index covers all articles, illustrations and book reviews published in Recorded Sound 45-72. Alphabetisation is, regardless of stops, letter by letter; but single author entries precede joint author entries; reviews follow these; and subject entries come last. Book titles are italicised.

An attempt has been made to index important references, and to categorise subject entries. A few words have been excluded from the index (except when they begin a title) in order to save space; these words are: disc, gramophone, instrument, LP, long-playing, music(al), phonograph (as a synonym for 'gramophone'), 78 rpm and sound.

Numbers in bold denote the issue. Abbreviations: bet between; ed edited; rev review; trans translated by.
