FLIP YOUR LESSONS

ASCA Magazine
May/April 2015
Volume 52, Number 4

ASCA Webinar
September 2015

WHY FLIP?

1. Maximize counselor time
2. Maximize access to all
3. Provide consistent content
4. Increase engagement
5. Allow for content reinforcement
6. Builds relationships

FLIPPING RECIPE

1. Understand "flipping" as it pertains to the school counseling delivery system
2. Describe how flipping lessons can affect the school counseling core curriculum
3. Know and understand several free tech tools
4. Articulate this unique method that encourages staff involvement and ensures the effective implementation of the school counseling core curriculum

COMPONENTS OF FLIPPING

1. Technology-based content delivery
2. Face-to-face follow up

MUST include BOTH

FLIPPING IS NOT...

- ✓ A substitute for face-to-face intervention
- ✓ A last minute decision
- ✓ The same video from year to year
- ✓ Only for students or core curriculum lessons

MATT'S STORY

Problem

- Inconsistent large classroom lessons
- Academic demands and high expectations for students
- Tough to balance all the domains: academic, career, personal/social

Solution

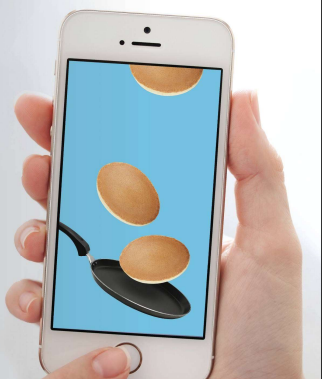

Content delivery: VideoScribe + narration to YouTube to district learning management system

Follow up: Informal Q&A during homeroom or lunchtime

FLIPPING IN SCHOOL COUNSELING

Many students
little time
need for a creative approach

FRANCIENE'S STORY

Problem

- Antiquated registration process
- Disproportionate understanding of the registration process
- Inconsistent delivery of materials to students, uninformed parents

Solution

Content delivery: Prezi + Vocaroo posted to school website and shared in student management portal

Follow up: Informal Q&A
By appointment during Advisory

KATO'S STORY

Problem

- 1 topic
- 18 classrooms
- 25 minutes per class

Solution

Content delivery: PPT to iMovie + narration to YouTube

Follow up: Discuss and address questions in class visit
