FACULTY

J. Scott Yaruss, PhD, CCC-SLP, BCS-F, is an associate professor and director of the master’s programs in speech-language pathology at the University of Pittsburgh. Yaruss has served on the board of directors for the National Stuttering Association and as associate coordinator for ASHA’s Special Interest Group 4 (Fluency and Fluency Disorders). His research examines factors that contribute to the development of stuttering in young children, as well as methods for evaluating treatment outcomes in people who stutter. He has published nearly 60 papers in peer-reviewed journals and more than 100 other articles, papers, and chapters on stuttering. He is co-author of the Overall Assessment of the Speaker’s Experience of Stuttering (OASES; Pearson), as well as School-Age Stuttering Therapy: A Practical Guide and the Minimizing Bullying Program (Stuttering Therapy Resources, Inc.). Yaruss is an ASHA Fellow, has been named Speech-Language Pathologist of the Year by the National Stuttering Association, and received the University of Pittsburgh School of Health and Rehabilitation Science Dean’s Distinguished Teaching Award. He teaches classes on stuttering and counseling methods for SLPs at the University of Pittsburgh and frequently conducts workshops around the world designed to help SLPs improve their ability to work with individuals who stutter.

Financial Disclosures

- Associate professor at University of Pittsburgh
- Royalties from Pearson and Stuttering Therapy Resources
- Financial compensation from ASHA for this presentation

Nonfinancial Disclosures

- Advisory board for StutterTalk
- Volunteer for the National Stuttering Association