Perspectives on Augmentative and Alternative Communication
Vol. 23, No. 1, January 2014

DISCLOSURES

Telepractice: An Overview and Best Practices
Jana Cason
Ellen Cohn

Financial:
This paper was supported in part by the RERC on Telerehabilitation at the University of Pittsburgh, funded by NIDRR Department of Education. Jana Cason receives royalties from the sale of the Educator’s Toolkit for Teaching Telehealth from Go2Care. Ellen Cohn receives royalties as a co-editor for one of the books referenced in this paper.

Nonfinancial:
Jana Cason is the vice-chair of the American Telemedicine Association’s Telerehabilitation Special Interest Section. Jana Cason serves on the Affordable Care Act Ad Hoc Committee and chairs the Telehealth Subcommittee for the American Occupational Therapy Association. Ellen Cohn is a journal editor for the International Journal of Telehabilitation.

Clinical Aspects Related to Tele-AAC: A Technical Report
Nerissa Hall
Michelle Boisvert

Financial:
None

Nonfinancial:
Prior to working independently, Nerissa Hall and Michelle Boisvert were doctoral students at the University of Massachusetts-Amherst, funded by a grant awarded to Dr. Mary Andrianopoulos by the U.S. Department of Education. Michelle Boisvert is the editor of ASHA SIG 18, Perspectives on Telepractice.

Assessing Children’s Language Skills at a Distance: Does it Work?
Brian Manzanares
Pui Fong Kan

Financial:
None

Nonfinancial:
None

Case Studies for Telepractice in AAC
Tanya Rose Curtis

Financial:
Tanya Rose Curtis was contracted to provide training services for Words+ Inc., whose products are discussed in the article, during the project reported in this article. Since that time, she has subsequently become an employee of Words+ Inc.

Nonfinancial:
None
The Role of Photographs in Face-to-Face Interactions involving Younger and Older Neurotypical Adults
Katlyn Engebretsen
Rachel Hartman
Dave Beukelman
Karen Hux

Financial:
None Nonfinancial:
None