DISCLOSURES

Best Practice for Developmental Stuttering: Balancing Evidence and Expertise, by Courtney T. Byrd and Joseph Donaher, published in Language, Speech, and Hearing Services in Schools

Financial Disclosures
Courtney T. Byrd reports no financial relationships to the content of this article. Joseph Donaher receives a salary from Children’s Hospital of Philadelphia.

Nonfinancial Disclosures
Courtney T. Byrd reports no nonfinancial relationships to the content of this article. Joseph Donaher serves on the Specialty Board for Fluency and Fluency Disorders.

Stuttering in Preschool Children: Direct Versus Indirect Treatment, by Marilyn A. Nippold, published in Language, Speech, and Hearing Services in Schools

Financial Disclosures
Marilyn A. Nippold reports no financial relationships to the content of this article.

Nonfinancial Disclosures
Marilyn A. Nippold reports no nonfinancial relationships to the content of this article.

Financial Disclosures
Partial support of Nan Bernstein Ratner’s fluency research comes from grants from the National Science Foundation and the National Institutes of Health.

Nonfinancial Disclosures
Nan Bernstein Ratner is President-Elect of the International Fluency Association. The views expressed in this article are her personal opinion and do not represent the views of the IFA.

Evidence, Goals, and Outcomes in Stuttering Treatment: Applications With an Adolescent Who Stutters, by Anne K. Marcotte, published in Language, Speech, and Hearing Services in Schools

Financial Disclosures
Anne K. Marcotte is a professor at the University of Georgia, and her salary supported the preparation of this article; however, the University has not influenced her views on stuttering treatment.

Nonfinancial Disclosures
Anne K. Marcotte reports no nonfinancial relationships to the content of this article.

ASHA Self-Study 3290
Comprehensive Stuttering Treatment for Adolescents: A Case Study, by Craig E. Coleman, published in Language, Speech, and Hearing Services in Schools

Financial Disclosures
Craig E. Coleman receives royalties for the -S and -T versions of the Overall Assessment of the Speakers’ Experience of Stuttering (OASES) through Stuttering Therapy Resources. He is a salaried employee of Marshall University.

Nonfinancial Disclosures
Craig E. Coleman reports no nonfinancial relationships to the content of this article.