DISCLOSURES

Moving Beyond Mean Length of Utterance: Analyzing Language Samples to Identify Intervention Targets
Robert E. Owens, Jr.
Stacey L. Pavelko,
Dennis Bambinelli

Disclosures
Financial: Robert E. Owens, Jr., has no relevant financial interests to disclose.
Stacey L. Pavelko has no relevant financial interests to disclose.
Dennis Bambinelli has no relevant financial interests to disclose.
Nonfinancial: Robert E. Owens, Jr., has no relevant nonfinancial interests to disclose.
Stacey L. Pavelko has no relevant nonfinancial interests to disclose.
Dennis Bambinelli has no relevant nonfinancial interests to disclose.

Using Language Sample Analysis to Assess Pragmatic Skills in School-Age Children and Adolescents
Geralyn R. Timler

Disclosures
Financial: Geralyn R. Timler has no relevant financial interests to disclose.
Nonfinancial: Geralyn R. Timler has no relevant nonfinancial interests to disclose.

Language Sampling Considerations for AAE Speakers: A Patterns- and Systems-Based Approach
Valerie E. Johnson
Nicole M. Koonce

Disclosures
Financial: Valarie E. Johnson has no relevant financial interests to disclose.
Nicole M. Koonce has no relevant financial interests to disclose.
Nonfinancial: Valarie E. Johnson has no relevant nonfinancial interests to disclose.
Nicole M. Koonce has no relevant nonfinancial interests to disclose.

How to Code Written Language Samples for SALT Analysis
Nickola Wolf Nelson

Disclosures
Financial: Nickola Wolf Neslon has no financial relationship with the publishers of SALT and receives no royalties from the sales of any publications related to SALT or any of the other publications cited in this article. Procedures reported in this article were developed with the support of several grants from the U.S. Department of Education, but the opinions are the author's and not the U.S. government.
Nonfinancial: Nickola Wolf Neslon has no relevant nonfinancial interests to disclose.