DISCLOSURES

Multimodal Communication Program for Adults: Cognitive Considerations
Sarah E. Wallace
Department of Speech-Language Pathology, Duquesne University
Pittsburgh, PA
Sarah Diehl
Department of Hearing and Speech Sciences, Vanderbilt University
Nashville, TN

Financial: Sarah Wallace and Sarah Diehl have no relevant financial interests to disclose.
Nonfinancial: Sarah Wallace has no relevant nonfinancial interests to disclose. This information has been presented as part of Sarah Diehl's Master's Thesis project at the ASHA Convention and in her unpublished Master's Thesis document.

The Impact of Presupposition on the Syntax and Morphology of a Child Who Uses AAC
Patti L. Solomon-Rice
Department of Special Education and Communicative Disorders, San Francisco State University, San Francisco, CA
Gloria Soto
Department of Special Education and Communicative Disorders, San Francisco State University, San Francisco, CA
Wesley Heidenreich
San Francisco Unified School District, San Francisco, CA

Financial: Patti L. Solomon-Rice, Gloria Soto, and Wesley Heidenreich have no relevant financial interests to disclose.
Nonfinancial: Patti L. Solomon-Rice, Gloria Soto, and Wesley Heidenreich have no relevant nonfinancial interests to disclose.

Addressing the Needs of Children With Complex Communication Needs and Their Partners in Areas of Poverty: To Haiti and Back
Jessica Gormley
The Pennsylvania State University
State College, PA

Financial: Jessica Gormley has no relevant financial interests to disclose.
Nonfinancial: Jessica Gormley has no relevant nonfinancial interests to disclose.