Case Study in Social Entrepreneurship

20 teams of students worked with professors, staff & Brown alumni

Sherab Dorji, Brown University Student

“Love this platform. As our venture is a for-profit social enterprise, B4B was helpful for us I think it's a great tool to use to expand what you think about with your venture”

Hybrid model of teaching, combining offline lectures with online work

Alan Harlam, Social Entrepreneurship Director

“We were looking for a platform that captured student work and facilitated the mentoring by allowing students to share their work and for mentors to share their feedback”

Instructors monitor the students progress weekly until their final evaluation

Lizzie Pollock, Program Staff

“I found B4B to be a very valuable tool in general and would use it in other business contexts. The product is well-designed and their team offer incredible support.”
