

Put the Research-Based Knowledge of Cornell University To Work For Your Ag Business

Cornell Cooperative Extension Orange County has been busy behind-the-scenes revamping and retooling our services and resources to better serve you, as part of the local agriculture community.

As 21st century technology continues to impact our lives, we are taking advantage of these changes to communicate and share information with our colleagues across the region and state. This means our attention to local issues remains focused, but we are also reaching across county lines to take advantage of breaking information in "real time."

All of this additional "news you can use" will be delivered through newsletters, "e-blasts" and other modes of communication currently being designed and developed. We've also restructured our membership programs to address the needs of your ag business.

Your Ag Subscription makes a real difference in offsetting the costs of producing newsletters, research and programming to your agricultural business. Subscribe today, to take advantage of the many services Cornell Cooperative Extension Orange County will be providing you over the next year!

- ◆ Expanded input from regional and statewide Extension personnel will be shared with you.
- ◆ AgFocus newsletter ten times a year.
- ◆ Enhanced and expanded commodity-specific resources and electronic alert messages (fine-tuned to your specific needs and interests).
- ◆ Advanced notice and discounted pricing on Extension workshops, programs and other events.
