COMMERCIAL AGRICULTURE/HORTICULTURE PROGRAM PUBLICATIONS

Publications available for the Commercial Grower, Producer, and Landscape Professional:

Agricultural News, Serving the Suffolk County Agriculture and Horticulture Industries. This monthly publication covers all aspects of agriculture and horticulture, including ornamental horticulture. Learn the latest information and research from Cornell Cooperative Extension of Suffolk County, Cornell University, the Long Island Horticultural Research & Extension Center (LIHREC), and other universities, organizations, and agencies. Available by first class mail, $20/year; or by email $10/year.

Long Island Fruit & Vegetable Update. Sent every Thursday from the first week in April until the end of September. Information includes Integrated Pest Management (IPM) reports, staff field observations, cultural practices, nutrient and soil management, updates of rules and regulations, pesticides updates, Field Days, twilight meetings, and funding opportunities. Available by email as a PDF file or fax, $15/year; or first class mail, $20/year.

Northeast Greenhouse Notes. This e-Newsletter will be published occasionally throughout the year and provides updates, announcements, and information on upcoming programs pertaining to the greenhouse industry. Available by email only, no charge.

e-Gro Alert. This e-newsletter alerts greenhouse growers to current cultural, insect, or disease problems, including color photographs. E-Gro Alert is published weekly in the spring and occasionally throughout the rest of the year, and is a collaboration of Cornell Cooperative Extension of Suffolk County and numerous university and extension specialists from around the country. Available by email only, no charge.
