Learn vet science techniques from professionals!

June 29 | A day in the life of a Vet Tech. Participants will learn from a panel what it takes to become a vet tech, daily routines in the exam room and office, and industry skills required.

July 6 | With help from Joyce Amels, LVT from NYS Department of Ag & Markets, the class will participate in poultry necropsy. Learn anatomy, basic structures, and their functions.

July 13 | Visit a local facility working with and examining ruminant animals, plus tips and tricks for catching issues early on. **This class will take place at Stonewall Farms in Jeffersonville, NY.

*Any Sullivan County youth ages 5-19 can join 4-H at any time for free. [Photo: Lindsay France/Cornell U.]
