Local agriculture is the backbone of our community, with farms accounting for over half a million acres of land across the 51st and 52nd Senate Districts. Our more than 500 local farms pump over $20 million into our upstate economy.

Our region is fortunate to have a diverse array of farms, and many will be opening their doors for a special two-day tour. This is a terrific opportunity for families to learn more about local agriculture and enjoy homegrown goods produced here in Upstate New York.

We hope you and your family can take some time to visit our local farms, learn and let our farmers know how much we appreciate their hard work.

We want to make sure agriculture stays a strong industry for our next generation. That’s why we’re proud to partner with Cornell Cooperative Extension on their efforts to connect farms with the communities they serve and bring programs like agricultural education back into our classrooms.

Farm Trail Tips:

- Look for signs along the road to help guide you to each participating farm.
- Bring a cooler and some cash! All farms have products for sale and not all accept credit cards.
- Wear a pair of shoes you won’t mind getting dirty – it’s a farm after all!
- Come prepared - pack a hat, sunscreen and umbrella.
- Please don’t bring any pets.
- Be ready to have fun and learn something new!
