Cut Back on Your Kid’s Sweet Treats

Improve your child’s health by limiting the amount of food and drinks with added sugars you serve. If you don’t buy these foods and drinks, your kids won’t get them very often. Most added sugars come from soda, sports drinks, energy drinks, juice drinks, lemonade, sweetened iced tea, cakes, candy, cookies and ice cream.

- Serve small portions of foods and beverages with added sugar.
- Choose water, low fat or fat free milk or small amounts of 100% juice for beverages.
- Choose the ‘no candy’ checkout lane at the store.
- Reward kids with hugs, kind words and non-food items like stickers or pencils instead of candy or other sweets.
- Sugary foods are marketed to kids as ‘fun’. Make healthy foods fun by involving your kids in preparing them.
- Show kids where the Sugars line is on the Nutrition Facts label. In the grocery store, challenge your kids to find cereals with the lowest number of grams of sugars and buy those.
- Limit sweets to special occasions and do not make them a part of everyday meals and snacks.
  - Make fruit the ‘everyday’ dessert.

In Season: Asparagus

Choose firm stalks with buds that are tightly closed. Store stalks with a damp paper towel wrapped around the ends in the crisper section of your refrigerator. Eat asparagus soon after buying it as its flavor decreases each day that it’s stored.

To cook asparagus, wash it first under cool running water and snap off the woody ends. Steam, stir fry, boil, grill or roast asparagus. To roast, make a foil pouch around the asparagus and place on a baking sheet. Cook in a 400 degree oven for 10-15 minutes or until the asparagus is bright green.
With your child, visit your local public library and borrow “First Peas to the Table” by Susan Grigsby. It tells the story of a school that starts a school vegetable garden and who has a First Peas from The Garden contest like Thomas Jefferson did at his Monticello garden. Read the book with your child and talk about growing vegetables. Try locally grown peas or maybe peas you’ve grown in your own garden.
