THE RESTORED[®] COLLECTION

The Science of Red Light Treatment

As we mature, our skin is affected by the environment, free radicals and the aging process. Over time, the production of collagen decreases, leaving skin less supple and resulting in an increase in fine lines, wrinkles, skin discoloration and enlarged pores.

When visible red light wavelengths (600-750nm) are absorbed into the skin, receptors stimulate a naturally occurring process in cells resulting in collagen and elastin production. Light therapy simply helps this process, allowing the cells to become more productive. As activity in the cells increases, they are more responsive to topical skincare treatments, enhancing their effectiveness. Red light treatment activates electron transport, ATP release, blood flow, reactive oxygen species and many other signaling pathways.¹

The Science of the Restored[®] Collection

Restored[®] is a collection of four products that can be tailored to the daily skincare needs of anyone looking to improve their skin's appearance and protect it from future HEV blue light damage.

The Restored[®] Collection is the only light treatment system that contains Pu[red][®] Technology, a technology made of a patent-pending ingredient designed to protect the skin from damaging high energy blue-violet visible light.

Pu[red][®] Technology acts in two different ways:

- By blocking High Energy Visible blue light to help protect skin from its harmful effects
- By allowing red light to reach skin to receive the benefits of increased collagen production, reduction of blemishes and minimized pores
