

DENIS HORVAT

BIO

Denis Horvat is a Copenhagen-based DJ and producer known for his deep, melodic sound and analog-driven productions. With a steady presence in the electronic music world, he has released on respected labels like Innervisions, Afterlife, and Diynamic, earning recognition for his refined studio work and immersive DJ sets.

Born to Croatian parents in Frederiksværk, a town northwest of Copenhagen, Horvat was introduced to music through his father's 1980s record collection—Depeche Mode, Billy Idol, Blondie, and Kiss. At 10, a cousin introduced him to The Prodigy, sparking a lifelong connection to electronic music.

A self-taught producer with a background as a drummer, Horvat built his sound around analog gear, which defines his rich, textured take on what he calls "synthesizer techno." His remix of WhoMadeWho's "Dynasty" became a global club staple and showcases his talent for reimagining tracks with depth and energy.

Though production was his initial focus, Horvat has become equally respected as a DJ. His sets are detailed and narrative-driven, known for building atmosphere and momentum across long arcs. He regularly plays alongside leading names like Âme, Dixon, and Maceo Plex, earning a reputation for both consistency and creativity.
