How to Keep Pets Safe & Warm

See a cat or dog out in the cold without proper shelter? Contact local law enforcement. Dogs left in extreme temperatures, especially without food or shelter, are at risk of hypothermia, death or frostbite.

Daily Walks in the cold can damage you dogs paws. Keep their paws moisturized to prevent against salt and chemical agents.

Consider a coat or sweater for short hair breeds. Coverage from the base of the tail to the belly provides extra warmth.

Outdoor, stray and feral cats sometimes sleep under car hoods to stay warm. But the fan belt can injure or kill a cat when the motor starts. To avoid catastrophe: bang loudly on yor hood before starting the engine to give the cat a chance to escape.
