

Training in Acupuncture Without Borders

If you would like to provide support for Ukrainian refugees and other people affected by acute stress, pain, and trauma, please join us for a special two-part webinar on trauma-reduction acupuncture techniques. This course is presented by Acupuncturists Without Borders (AWB), a non-profit organization in the United States that trains acupuncturists and other health professionals to provide trauma informed TCM care in communities affected by disasters and human conflict.

Part 1 will include a two-hour presentation on the NADA Five Point Ear Acupuncture Protocol, how to use it as an acupuncture approach, and how to apply ear seeds to yourself/another person using this protocol.

When: Wednesday, March 16 at 7pm Central European Time

Where: On ZOOM

Webinar 2 will be held later in March and will include training in Battlefield Acupuncture for pain conditions, as well as scalp acupuncture for traumatic stress.

The webinars are free of charge and are open to acupuncturists, physicians, nurses, and other health care practitioners.

AWB is organizing field clinics, in collaboration with the ETCMA member societies including PTTMC and other organizations, to support refugees fleeing from Ukraine. We hope you will use this training to join us in the field once we have established clinic sites!
