

10 Skills Every Person Needs to Become a Great Leader

Any of us could be a leader but only few are great. Great leaders have these skill sets in common:

1. A great leader knows how to inspire and motivate others. A great leader creates a clear vision of the future and at the same time motivates his or her followers to achieve their goals.
2. A great leader exhibits high integrity and honesty. A great leader is honest and transparent enough when it comes to answering any question. On the other hand, integrity can be earned by someone who plans something and eventually achieves that goal.
3. A great leader can solve problems and analyze issues. A great leader must possess strong analytical skills, someone who knows how to solve organizational problems, knows how to weigh the positive and negative effects of the decisions to make.
4. A great leader has a great drive to achieve results. A great leader would make things happen because they have high level of perseverance, goal-oriented, has the drive of getting things done as soon as possible at the same time achieve high quality results.
5. A great leader can communicate in a powerful and creative manner. A great leader communicates often with his or her people in a way that is understandable and clear, may it be through a one-on-one conversation, team meeting, electronic mails, phone calls or texts, Skype calls, or any medium of communication.
6. A great leader builds strong relationships. A great leader knows that a successful goal can be achieved by building a solid relationship and trust with his or her followers.
7. A great leader have technical and professional skills. Technical and professional skills can both be earned over time, through hard work and experience.
8. A great leader can display a strategic perspective. A great leader have a long-term vision of the future. A leader should also be tactical and maintain a strategic outlook to obtain the output possible.
9. A great leader can help others develop their potentials. A great leader knows that they must develop the skills of their work force.
10. A great leader is innovative. A great leader knows that change is constant and is always open to new methods and new ideas.