

What is ICDL?

ICDL: The Home of DIR® & DIRFloortime®

The International Council on Development and Learning is a not-for-profit organization dedicated to promoting each person's development to their fullest potential. Through the genius and leadership of Dr. Stanley Greenspan, ICDL was formed over 30 years ago as the official home of DIR and DIRFloortime. DIRFloortime is recognized as the next generation of evidence-based approach for autism and other developmental challenges.

Mission

To make a positive impact in people's lives by promoting and championing a developmental and relationship-based approach to human development and learning.

Vision

A world where individual differences are embraced and everyone achieves their fullest potential.

We Value

Relationships: We value relationships because relationships fuel development.

Connections: We value the power of emotional connections because connections allow us to enter, share, and expand our world.

Respect: We value each person's unique individual differences.

Leadership: We value our leadership role in teaching the world about the power of a relationship-based developmental approach.

Results: We value results that have a lasting and empowering impact.

Read more at www.icdl.com.

ICDL holds registered trademarks in the United States and/or other countries for DIR®, Floortime®, and DIRFloortime®.