

The Shell Egg Demand Indicator for this week is -3.70, down 0.6 points from last week.

This Week:

Demand for shell eggs is lower as movement at retail remains slow. Wholesale prices for negotiated trading of loose caged eggs are steady to slightly weak on mostly light demand for moderate to available offerings and moderate to heavy supplies. Trading is slow to moderate. Wholesale prices for formula trading of carton stock are steady moderate to available offerings. Wholesale breaking stock prices are steady on light to very light demand for moderate to available offerings and moderate to fully adequate supplies. Schedules are full to extended and trading is slow. The preliminary survey of grocery outlets this week indicates a continued decline in feature activity with a higher average ad price.
