Historical Note

Albert C. (Coombs) Barnes (1872 – 1951) was a chemist, entrepreneur, and educator whose early financial success provided him with the means to form a world class art collection and to establish the Barnes Foundation, a non-profit institution dedicated to art education. Albert C. Barnes attended Philadelphia's Central High School and received his medical degree at the University of Pennsylvania in 1892. He went on to study physiological chemistry at the University of Berlin and pharmacology at the Ruprecht-Karls-Universitat in Heidelberg. While in Heidelberg, he recruited German chemist Hermann Hille to work for H. K. Mulford and Company, for whom Barnes had worked as an advertising and sales manager since 1895. Barnes and Hille worked together on their own time to develop a silver-based antiseptic called Argyrol, and in May 1902 they both left H.K. Mulford and Company to form their own partnership.

Established as a pharmaceutical company located at 24 North 40th Street in Philadelphia, the partnership of Barnes and Hille was successful almost immediately, with net profits rising from $4,747.46 in 1903 to $152,772.76 in 1906. This was due in large part to Barnes's strategy of advertising directly to doctors and soliciting their endorsements. "It is just such doctors who proved to be our most valuable advertising capital because they write a lot and they talk a lot, and what they say reaches not only other specialists but a great many general practitioners who accept their statements as authoritative," Barnes wrote. The doctors proved receptive to Argyrol and to Barnes and Hille's new product, an iron salt called Otoferrin. In order to keep the formulas to Argyrol and Otoferrin secret, Barnes trademarked the product names but did not patent the product's formulas, and he would later zealously pursue and prosecute counterfeiters selling similar products under his trademarked names.

Despite their success, the partnership was troubled. In late 1903 Barnes expressed his wish to dissolve the partnership on suspicion that Hille was revealing firm secrets and selling its raw materials. Their differences were resolved on that occasion, but by early 1907 civility had become impossible and on May 31, 1907 Barnes filed a bill in equity requesting that the firm be dissolved. His petition granted, he bought Hille's half of the company, including all the rights to the formulas, and in 1908 established the A.C. Barnes Company at the same address. This business was also quite successful. Barnes sold the A.C. Barnes Company to the Zonite Products Corporation on July 19, 1929. Showing his characteristic concern for the welfare of his employees, Barnes brought many of them to work with him at the Barnes Foundation. Barnes and bookkeeper Nelle E. Mullen continued to administer the pension fund for former employees of the A.C. Barnes Company as trustees.

In 1922 Barnes's lifelong interest in aesthetics led him to endow the Barnes Foundation, a non-profit educational institution. The Foundation offers courses in art appreciation and horticulture, published a journal and a series of books, and offered scholarships for overseas study to worthy students, in addition to acquiring artworks. The Foundation, with a gallery and a home for Dr. and Mrs. Barnes, was built in a surrounding arboretum at 300 North Latch's Lane in Merion. The Foundation also maintained offices at 4525 Spruce St. in Philadelphia, and later at 4103 Haywood Road in Merion. These offices, and indeed the tax-free status of the Foundation as a whole, were the subject of spirited disputes between Dr. Barnes, the Internal Revenue Service, and the Receiver of Taxes for the City of Philadelphia, reflected in the surviving tax records.

In 1940 Dr. Barnes purchased an eighteenth-century farmhouse in Chester County, Pennsylvania, which he christened Ker-Feal. The farmhouse housed Barnes's collection of American decorative art and was intended to serve as part of the Foundation's educational program. Ker-Feal boasted impressive plantings under the direction of Laura L. Barnes, Dr. Barnes's wife, who also served as director of the Barnes Foundation Arboretum. During the Second World War, Barnes used the farm at Ker-Feal to grow crops that were donated to the war effort. Barnes also sent care packages abroad to Leo Stein and other friends devastated by the war in Europe, and purchased war bonds for his employees.

Although some viewed Barnes as cantankerous, he was exceptionally generous to his friends, employees, and family. He purchased cars and homes outright for his employees, covered their medical expenses, paid for their travel in Europe, and provided them with lifelong pensions. After his mother's death in 1912, Barnes held her estate in trust for his father, John J. Barnes, and his brother, Charles W. Barnes. He undertook many of his family's other expenses, as well. His personal financial records bear witness to these and a host of other small generosityes, some of which strike a modern eye as incongruous and amusing. In 1943, Barnes not only paid his friend John Dewey's hospital bills, he also ordered his favorite importer to send Dewey a bottle of Smith Glenlivet, deliverable to Dewey's room in New York Hospital. Barnes cared not only for the physical health of his associates, but also for their mental well-being. The financial records document, in very specific form, Barnes's extraordinary achievements in the worlds of business and education, and also capture his complex personality, revealed in the details of his getting and spending.

Scope and Content

The Barnes Foundation financial records include Albert C. Barnes's personal financial records as well as the records of his two businesses, Barnes and Hille and the A.C. Barnes Company, and the financial records of non-profit educational institution the Barnes Foundation, which Barnes endowed in 1922. The records date from 1902 – 1972, with the bulk of the records pertaining to the Barnes Foundation and dated 1922 – 1951.

This collection includes account books; balance statements; bank records such as checkbooks, cancelled checks, bank statements, and deposit records; cash account books; petty cash slips; employee records; records of investments; invoices and receipts; and tax records. Dr. Barnes's personal financial records include details of the estate of his mother, Lydia A. Barnes. Records for Barnes and Hille and the A.C. Barnes Company are sparse and incomplete. The Barnes and Hille financial records include legal records, including extensive documentation of the partnership's dissolution, and marketing records. The A.C. Barnes Company records include a few pieces of correspondence, legal records, and pension fund records. The majority of the records of the A.C. Barnes Company were transferred to the Zonite Products Corporation in 1929, as part of the sale of the company, and are no longer extant.

These records document Barnes's business dealings, his collecting, and aspects of his private life. The records of Barnes and Hille, the A.C. Barnes Company, and the Barnes Foundation include employment records listing staff members. The records of Barnes and Hille and the A.C. Barnes Company, although incomplete, provide evidence of Barnes's often innovative business methods and the means by which he built his fortune and financed his interest in art and education. Cancelled checks, checkbooks, purchase records, and customs invoices provide provenance for many of the artworks Dr. Barnes acquired between 1912 and 1951. Information about the framing, conservation, repair, and maintenance of some paintings and antiques can be found in invoices, receipts, and checkbooks. Expenses related to the construction of and repairs to Barnes Foundation buildings are also found in these records. Various facets of Dr. Barnes's personal life, including information about family, pets, food and drink, travel arrangements, and healthcare issues, are revealed in his personal financial papers.

Series I. Albert C. Barnes financial records

Collection Inventory

Series I. Albert C. Barnes financial records 1902-1951 14.25 Linear feetScope and Content Note

This series includes bank records; records of investments; records relating to the estate of Dr. Barnes's mother, Lydia A. Barnes; invoices and receipts; and tax records. Bank records include checkbooks whose annotated check stubs serve as a ledger recording daily expenses. Investment records include a ledger documenting Barnes's real estate development projects along Latch's Lane, 1912-1917, as well as a Chester County properties ledger recording expenses at Barnes's farmhouse, Ker-Feal, and showing that Barnes paid for crops grown at neighboring farms and contributed the harvest to the war effort in the early 1940s. Papers relating to the estate of Dr. Barnes's mother, Lydia A. Barnes, who died in 1912, deal chiefly with the management of the house at 1331 Tasker St., which she owned. Albert C. Barnes held the house in trust for his father, John J. Barnes, and his brother, Charles W. Barnes, until 1922 when the property was sold. Invoices and receipts are a rich source of information about Barnes's everyday life, recording such details as his preferred brand of cigarettes, his membership in various clubs, and his tastes in clothes and reading material. Invoices also include expenses that Barnes assumed on behalf of his family and his employees. Records of expenses are mainly handwritten lists of mundane daily expenses, but also include purchase records for various antiques and fine crafts. The records of expenses, along with invoices, checkbooks, and cancelled checks, document Barnes's career as a collector. Records of expenses also include a subject file concerning Dr. Barnes's medical expenses, which contains hospital invoices, medical records, pharmacy scripts, and other related items. This subject file, while rather anomalous, was found as-is and has been preserved in its original order. Tax records detail personal, business, and investment income and also include filing information for his personal household staff. Please see Presidents' Files, Albert C. Barnes Correspondence, for more information on tax records. Dr. Barnes occasionally disputed his taxes and the voluminous correspondence generated with lawyers and government agents, along with the tax returns themselves, can sometimes be found in his correspondence.

Subseries IV. Purchases and sales

Subseries IV. Purchases and sales 1902-1951 4.25 Linear feetArrangement

Purchases and sales are arranged in two sub-subseries: A. Invoices and receipts ; B. Records of expenses. These sub-subseries are arranged chronologically, and then alphabetically by folder title.

Sub-subseries A. Invoices and receipts 1902-1951 4.0 Linear feetArrangement

This subseries is arranged chronologically, and then alphabetically by folder title. The majority of the invoices and receipts in this sub-series have been arranged in general letter files. Constituents have generally been filed in direct order, unless they had previous personal correspondence with Dr. Barnes or were personally known to him, in which case they have been filed in inverted order, following the precedent of their correspondence. If the invoices and receipts deal with a subject that is of particular interest to the institution, they have been given their own folder, filed under the individual constituent name. Subjects deemed of sufficient interest to warrant this treatment include: the purchase, shipping, or conservation of artwork, frames, and fine crafts; items Barnes sold; photography of Barnes's collection; the interior décor of the Barnes' homes; the purchase of books and phonograph records, which illuminate influences on Barnes's aesthetic theories; Dr. Barnes's travel expenses; his membership in various clubs; and medical expenses, whether for Barnes or others.

Series II. Barnes and Hille financial records 1902-1907 0.75 Linear feetScope and Content Note

This series includes account books, a letter book, financial statements, legal records, a direct-mail list used for marketing purposes, invoices, receipts, and records of expenses for the partnership Barnes and Hille, which was formed in 1902 and ended in 1908. Account books and financial statements show the quick growth and increasing profitability of the company, while legal records document the equally quick decline in the partners' relationship. Legal records include a brief history of the partnership written by Barnes, correspondence, financial records, advertising materials, records of experiments, photos, Barnes's description of Hille's character, and copies of the bill in equity case that led to the partnership's dissolution in 1908. Records for this company are sparse and incomplete.

Series III. A.C. Barnes Company financial records 1915-1952 4.75 Linear feet

Scope and Content Note

This series contains correspondence, legal records, clippings, pension fund records, and invoices and receipts. Most of the records for this company were transferred to the Zonite Products Corporation when they purchased the A.C. Barnes Company in 1929. The one exception was the pension fund records, as Albert C. Barnes and Nelle E. Mullen continued to administer the A.C. Barnes Company pension fund for the company's original employees long after the company's sale. Pension fund records include checkbooks whose annotated check stubs serve as a ledger recording expenses, cancelled checks and bank statements, deposit books, copies of the original fund indenture, and tax returns. Folders labeled "pension fund records" with no further characterization preserve the original folder title and original order. They include records of bond purchases, legal opinions on bonds, tax withholding forms, records of payments made to employees, receipts, and pension fund deposit and withdrawal slips.

General note

Lists the office furniture to be purchased by the Barnes Foundation from the A.C. Barnes Company, with prices. Includes a list of objects owned by Dr. Barnes and Nelle E. Mullen personally, to be excluded from the sale. Also includes a list of "necessary new articles" to be purchased.

Series IV. Barnes Foundation financial records 1922-1972 36.375 Linear feet

Scope and Content Note

This series includes balance statements; bank records; cash account records; employment records; records of investments; journals and ledgers; records of sales of the Foundation's publications; invoices and receipts; records of expenses; and tax records. Bank records include checkbooks whose annotated check stubs serve as a ledger recording daily expenses. Cancelled checks, bank statements, and deposit books and slips may also be found in the bank records subseries. While these records are not fully complete, they nonetheless offer a detailed look at the Foundation's activities. Checks and check stubs provide provenance for the purchase of artworks and fine crafts, document the Foundation's educational work in the form of works published and scholarships for study, and record payments for the construction, repair, and maintenance of Foundation buildings, amongst many other things. Cash account records, along with the journals and ledgers, are dense with information on all aspects of the Foundation's financial life, although entries vary greatly in their degree of comprehensiveness. While most records in this collection extend only through 1951, the year of Dr. Barnes's death, or 1952, when many accounts were closed, cash account journals have been processed through 1972. Cash accounts from 1951-1962 and 1969-1972 were physically bound together in the same journal, and so it was deemed best to preserve original order and include them here all together. Cash accounts also include petty cash slips that itemize notable purchases of antiques. The remainder of the petty cash slips, approximately three cubic feet originally found in this collection, were examined individually and deaccessioned, as they did not possess any evidential, informational, or intrinsic value, and were in uniformly poor physical condition. Employment records range in completeness, from a few handwritten memos to full typed payroll lists. Aside from the names, wages, and home addresses of employees, payroll records also include information on seasonal bonuses, gifts and financial assistance to employees, employee references, and biographical information. Investment records include records of bond and security purchases, legal opinions regarding bonds, deposit envelopes and records, and bond ledgers. Bond ledgers may include, in a later year, records from an earlier year used as sources or worksheets. Original order has been maintained in these files.

Sales of the Foundation's publications are documented mainly by book sales journals and royalty statements. There are also a small number of purchase orders from booksellers that do not appear in the sales journals. The remainder of the purchase orders, approximately one linear foot originally found in this collection, were deemed duplicates. The relevant information in the purchase orders also appeared in the journals, and the purchase orders themselves held no intrinsic value, so all duplicates were deaccessioned. Invoices and receipts contain information on a wide range of subjects, such as the purchase and conservation of artwork and fine crafts; the purchase of plants for the Foundation's renowned Arboretum; and the construction of, and repairs to, Foundation buildings. Records of expenses may include requests from employees for reimbursement, requests for checks to be sent to creditors, or handwritten lists of mundane expenses. They also include purchase records for various antiques and fine crafts, as well as two subject files, concerning expenses for the construction of the Barnes Foundation buildings, 1923-1924; and for gasoline and oil during wartime rationing, 1942-1945. These subject files reflect their original folder titles and have been preserved in original order. Barnes Foundation tax records convey the Foundation's mission as an educational institution and contain information on scholarships, employees, pensions, general operating expenses, and the Foundation's tax-exempt status, which was occasionally challenged. Please see Presidents' Files, Albert C. Barnes Correspondence, for more information on tax records.

Subseries I. Balances

Sub-subseries B. Invoices and receiptsSub-subseries B. Invoices and receipts 1922-1951 5.0 Linear feet*Arrangement

This subseries is arranged chronologically, and then alphabetically by folder title. The majority of the invoices and receipts in this sub-series have been arranged in general letter files. Constituents have generally been filed in direct order, unless they had previous personal correspondence with Dr. Barnes or were personally known to him, in which case they have been filed in inverted order, following the precedent of their correspondence. If the invoices and receipts deal with a subject that is of particular interest to the institution, they have been given their own folder, filed under the individual constituent name. Subjects deemed of sufficient interest to warrant this treatment include: the purchase, shipping, or conservation of artwork, frames, and fine crafts; artwork and fine crafts deaccessioned by the Foundation; botanical specimens purchased for the Foundation's Arboretum; the construction of, and repairs to, Foundation buildings; photography of the Foundation's art collection, Arboretum, and buildings; the purchase of books and phonograph records intended to support the Foundation's educational program; and medical expenses for Foundation staff.
