

Comcast and Barnes Foundation

Comcast Corporation is proud to be a premier sponsor of the inaugural year of the Barnes Foundation in Philadelphia and to provide support to make the Barnes world-renown collection and important educational programs more accessible to students and visitors from the Philadelphia-area and around the world. The re-opening of the Barnes Foundation on Benjamin Franklin Parkway will have a transformative impact on Philadelphia for generations to come.

Comcast is proud to call Philadelphia home, and to support many Philadelphia-based organizations that enrich our community, including the Barnes.

The Barnes' new campus is anticipated to increase annual visitation from 60,000 to 250,000, and yield an economic impact of more than $50 million annually within Philadelphia. The state-of-the-art building is also expected to increase student capacity by 500 percent, enabling the Barnes Foundation to supplement its historic commitment to arts education, and with a wider range of programs for families and very young audiences.

Since our founding in 1963, Comcast's connection to the thousands of communities we serve across the country has remained a priority. We work hard to build and strengthen our relationships with each of those communities, and to make a positive impact, improve every neighborhood, and create lasting results. We are delighted to partner with the Barnes Foundation to further this work in Philadelphia.
