To ensure that you get customers who spend money in your store, you need to be creative with your marketing. Choose from our selection of free Christmas onion templates for a simple way to promote your business and increase your sales this holiday season. Many people's holiday traditions include giving gifts. For retailers, that means two things. First, that consumers want to spend their hard-earned money, and second, that they have to compete with other retailers to lure consumers away from the hard-earned money. To keep up with the competition, your business must use all tactics it has available, including promotions, sales events, and special offers. Whether you own a bricks-and-mortar store or run an online business, you need a way to separate yourself from your competitors. Get started with your resume, too. Seasonal deals and December discounts are two key strategies. Flyers are also being at the forefront of your competition, making sure that your flyers are seasonally appropriate and have holiday themes. A well designed Christmas flies can help you:Sell goods and services – Including winter deals and discounts on your flyer is a great way to boost your Christmas season sales. This can then create repeat business and give your total sales a boost throughout the year. Promote holiday events – Whether you want to tell employees about an upcoming Christmas party or you're a holiday fundraiser, a Christmas event eater will help you spread the word. When creating your Christmas sling, consider both imagery and text. Here we've provided some guidelines on how to get the most out of your content and get the best possible results. Select Festive PhotosVisiting appeal is essential to capture the reader's attention. You'll need to select images that draw your eye to your content and encourage the reader to learn more about what you're promoting. Of course, you should consider your audience and tailor any images to suit. For example, if your company sells Christmas trees, you will probably want to use a picture of a Christmas tree to promote it. If you don't have to be this specific, you can always choose more generic images such as Christmas gifts, Santa Claus, a snowman, or baubles. When you buy photos for your Christmas sling, you can pay for royalty-free stock photos from such sites as Shutterstock. Another option is to download free images from sites like Pixabay, but be aware that the choice of available images is more limited. Whatever you choose to do, make sure you have permission to use the images and are not infringing any copyrights. Write text that excitesWhere you are promoting a special offer, discount, or seasonal special, flyer text can make the difference between a few additional sales and potentially hundreds of new and repeat customers. If you want to create a and enticing flyer, you must are the main elements to include:Title - Usually the first thing section that is read, the title should let the reader know what you are promoting. Examples include Holiday Sale Up To 40% Off! or Christmas Eve Service. Place the title in a prominent position and use a large, legible font that contrasts with the background color. If the flyer is not for a particular Christmas promotion, the title may simply be Merry Christmas or Happy New Year. Description - Under the title, you can include a section to add additional information relevant to your event, promotion, or greeting. If you're promoting a one-time event, be sure to include its date, time, and location. Call to Action – Depending on what you use flyers for, you may want to use phrases like Afee your order today or RSVP before 15 April 2016. An effective call to action lets the reader know what to do next and should encourage them to act sooner rather than later. Contact Information - So potential customers know where to get their much, be sure to include information about how to contact. This may include a physical address, website, phone number, or social media accounts. Once you've created your festive flyers, it's time to distribute them. When deciding on a strategy to promote your flyers, consider your target audience and where you are likely to find them. For general flyer distribution ideas, take a look at our Free Flyer Templates page. Also, here are some Christmas flyer promotion options you might want to consider based on your specific needs: Dress someone up in a festive-themed costume to hand out flyers in your area. Santa Claus or a reindeer are sure to catch the attention of passers-by. Send a Winter Specials email to your newsletter subscribers. Make it extra special by attaching a personal season's congratulatory e-card. Keep a stall at a Christmas market and offer a flyer to each person who makes a purchase or queries about your business. Another important aspect is timing. It may seem obvious, but there's not much point in distributing flyers during the spring if you're promoting a winter special. Carefully considering all the distribution options in advance will ensure that you get your flyer in front of the right people, in the right place, and at the right time. If you don't have time to design a flyer from scratch, you can download one of our free Christmas sling templates.
