Dear Joe,

As the year comes to a close, I try to take some time to review where I started and where I am today, and I want to thank you for working with me over the last twenty-eight years and for your help with the three moves we made as we expanded. When we laid out our present factory a few years ago, your assistance beginning with the preconstruction phase, drawings, contractor selection and price negotiation made a trying period into a smooth move from our old plant.

Few people can fully appreciate how difficult moving a full factory really is, and how much planning and how many decisions have to be made each time. Any oversight in equipment placement or production sequencing could easily become a nightmare for many years. Your assistance in the planning, purchasing, installing, and implementing of production lines for the production of Mexican food products speaks highly for your insight and understanding of production processes as well as your ability to be a quick study when working with a food production process that may not have been totally familiar to you. I can truly say that you were helpful in all aspects of our moves, and I appreciate it every day as I watch our production lines run so smoothly.

Finally, I appreciate your help with the construction process, and with the equipment vendors, which made it possible for us to come in within budget, or under, each time. And I can never thank you enough for your help with all those inspectors which probably saved us more than we might believe. I assure you that when I plan my next expansion, you will be the first person I call.

Sincerely,

Victor H. Vazquez
