Star spangled banner sheet music for flute

Sheet music is the format in which songs are written down. Notes begin with blank music loss paper consisting of graphs with five lines and four spaces, each representing a note. Songwriters who compose songs in standard musical notation use staff paper to create sheet music, which can then be passed on to musicians who interpret sheet music for a musical performance. Today, it's easier than ever to make your own sheet music. With notation software such as Finale, or the free web-based Noteflight service, anyone can turn their musical ideas into professional sheet music. Use Noteflight to get started (see Resources). Noteflight is a free web-based music notation service that allows you to write, print and even save your notes as music files for playback. Noteflight has a clean, easy-to-use interface that allows even a beginner to create a song in sheet music. Because Noteflight allows you to listen to what you've written, you can experiment with different notes until you create something that sounds good even if you're not familiar with music composition. Create a Noteflight account and sign in to start creating your notes. You can start writing your song right away. Click New Score at the top of the page located on a toolbar to create an empty node document. Select whether nodes should be private or shared. Noteflight presents you with an empty node sheet in Key of C with a 4/4 time signature. Click Edit Title at the top of your sheet music, and type the name of your song, and then click Edit Composer and type your name. On the Score menu with the Change Time Signature or Change Key Signature command, make the necessary changes to your key signature or time signature. Add notes and rests to your notes by clicking on the blank music staff. A notehead appears, and you can drag and click where you want the note to appear. You can also use the floating palette to select different note durations. When you insert your notes, Noteflight automatically reformatts nodes to keep the correct number of beats per bar. To listen to what you typed at any time, go to the Play menu and select the playback option you want. Print sheet music when you're done composing your song. The result will be a professional score on your song composition. You can also use Noteflight to create an audio file with your composition. With Noteflight, you can assign actual instrument sounds to the appropriate parts. Go to File and select Export to save the finished nodes as an MP3 or wav file. This allows you to take an example recording for your band. In an era of great turmoil and even greater rock 'n' roll, there are some moments that stand out half a century later. The Beatles play Ed Sullivan in early 1964 ranks high on the list. Shutting out Decade, the Woodstock festival in August 1969 is just up there as well. The three-day concert and love-in featured show-stopping performances from Santana, Sly & The Family Stone, and Janis Joplin. But the two hours set by Jimi Hendrix may be Woodstock's signature moment. By the time Hendrix took the stage on Monday morning at Woodstock, most festival-goers had left the premises. Hendrix looked out at a crowd that hung on after a gruelling three days (and, if you want to be poetic, a draining decade). Late in his set, he played the national anthem. While some considered his rendition of The Star-Spangled Banner controversial and unorthodox, Hendrix did not. He considered it beautiful in his ever-groovy way. Looking back, that's probably the best way to consider it - neither distorted protest nor funky salute to the flag. Hendrix saw nothing controversial about his version of the anthem. Rock guitar virtuoso Jimi Hendrix (1942 70) is seen during his performance at the Isle of Wight Festival, August 1970. | Evening Standard/Getty Images For a man known for flashing the peace signal at all times - he himself did when he played the national anthem at Woodstock - it's easy to guess that he must have protested the Vietnam War that day. In fact, it is fair to say Hendrix against war for various reasons. But he had no intention of saying I am against America because of the war in Vietnam. He could have said it and heard the roar of thousands, but he didn't. Instead, he let his guitar speak. When Dick Cavett later asked about the controversy over his anthem, Hendrix pulled it off. I don't know, I didn't know I was just playing it. I'm American, so I played what Hendrix said. I used to have to sing it at school, they made me sing it at school. Cavett, sensing the potential for more controversy and ugly letters, reminded viewers that Hendrix had served in the 101st Airborne Division. After pressing Hendrix about his unorthodox version and how people might react, Hendrix kept his ground. It's not unorthodox. I thought it was beautiful, he said. Hendrix managed to be shocking, anti-war, and patriotic all at once. Michael Lang, a promoter who was a driving force behind the festival, remembered it as shocking to everyone that morning. But Lang was quick to point out the other aspects of Hendrix's Star-Spangled Banner. [Hendrix's interpretation] gave it a meaning that was closer to where we all came from, Lang told MSNBC in 2009. There was no anti-American sentiment. It was anti-war sentiment. He brought it to us in a way no one has ever had. Rolling Stone's Greil Marcus agreed. There's really no way to just characterize it as a protest against the war, Marcus told MSNBC. That's for sure. But [Hendrix] also says, 'I'm a citizen of this country, too.' Most importantly, Hendrix was the king of all guitarists at the peak of his powers, and he put on an immersive show that day at Woodstock. If he wanted to get people to talk and think, he more than succeeded. Fifty years later, it will still send a chill up your spine. It was written by Francis Scott Key after he witnessed the bombardment of British ships by Fort McHenry during the War of 1812. The scene inspired him to pen the poem that is now our national anthem. Since then, the Star-Spangled Banner has become a rousing testament to our country's enduring strength, glory and beauty. Although there is no national law on punishment, if proper decency is not observed during the playing of the anthem, there are established rules of conduct. Especially since our national anthem is played so often now – as before sporting events – it's important to make sure you follow the correct protocol. That's why we tapped an etiquette expert to give you a crash course on how to honor our flag. While you may not be shocked by some of the rules, like taking your hat during the song, there may be some that take you by surprise. To ensure that you treat The Star-Spangled Banner with the respect it deserves wherever you are, read our step-by-step guide to National Anthem etiquette. Get On Your FeetAccording to Jacqueline Whitmore, etiquette expert and founder of the Protocol School of Palm Beach, you should stand as soon as you hear the first notes of The Star-Spangled Banner and place your right hand over your heart. If you are in a ball game and you go to your place when it begins, you should stop, stand on attention, and place your hand over your heart. Make sure you turn the flag, Whitmore says. If there isn't a flag and they just play music, just face forward. Remove your hat After standing, Whitmore continues if you are wearing a hat, take it off with your right hand and put it over your left shoulder, with your hand on your heart. Because every good rule needs an exception, National Anthem etiquette dictates that you can wear your hat during the national anthem if you participate in the Kentucky Derby. Religious headgear like yarmulkes can also remain in place. Put Down the Hot Dog-and the Cell PhoneAlthough all rules are important to follow, the greatest National Anthem etiquette does not involve giving it your full attention. Sure, you can sing along with gusto (even if you can't wear a tune), but otherwise keep your lips zipped-and that includes no talking on your cell phone. Just be respectful while it's playing, Whitmore says. Put your cell phone away. Don't eat or drink during the national anthem. And if you're chewing gum, you should stop. Save The ClappingHere is a big surprise to sports fans: according to National Anthem etiquette, don't applaud after The Star-Spangled Banner is played. It's really like a hymn, Whitmore explains. But I know that people during the Super Bowl clap. Usually on a ball game, someone performs it, everyone claps and then the players come out. But you're really not supposed to clap after Anthem. They have heavy non-tilt bases and simple one-handed lift and table tilt adjustments. The only thing I would have appreciated more was a heavier quality sheet metal on the easel part, and maybe metal instead of plastic tilt fittings... you get what you pay for... Our JANSJO LED table lamp Lamps come finished (IKEA is Swedish) in a few bright colors, so choose one that you like. I'm not sure what the LED light is rated for, but it's probably a 1 or 2 watt light, which is actually very bright. It's running pretty cool. Wall wart adapter electronics are at the power outlet end. It has a built-in power button. Please note that there are two models or versions of the table lamp. One is in a more compact box and the other is packed in a longer box. The difference is the way the flexible axle is mounted to the base. One in the short box is configured with two mounting chairs with screw bolts. The longer box contains the version of the lamp, as the flexible shaft has threads cut into it so that it is mounted at the bottom by attaching with a nut. I picked the short box one with the two mounting entries so it would withstand torque better and not work loose when fitted. They also have the same lamp head or light unit already attached to what looks like a giant spring rein instead of a heavy desk base. The flexible axle is slightly thinner and shorter. But it costs $30US as opposed to $10US. Why do you get less but spend more? I went for the $10 version. There is also a similar type of LED lamp SUNNAN that has a solar cell for $20, but I found difficult to move it back in to recharge the lamp battery. You can customize this lamp if you needed something more portable.. The other bookcase shelf lamps need a lot of work to mod it to fit and adjust for a music tripod. Filler plate I will not use the base that comes with the lamp, there is a heavy iron core disk and sheet metal cover that goes along with it. I will make a custom filler plate that makes up the hole in the iron disc so that the lamp can be placed and fixed directly on the music stand. You can make this filler plate out of most somewhat rigid, metal, wood, plastic... I used some small hardboard scraps from my TARDIS project to make the filler plate. I had some silver spray paint about around which I use to decorate the filler plate. The leftover Krylon gold paint from my Stargate Gong would have been too flashy, but some people like that Lexus emblem touch. You need a drill/driver with different drill bits. CAUTION: Know how to properly use power tools. The metal shards from drilling the musical stand must be disposed of carefully. The non-slip sandy finish on the music stand may have some sharp edges.
