Types Of Cuts
How the stone block is cut can dramatically alter how the resulting stone looks. Stone is formed over thousands of years as layers of sediment gather and solidify. Cutting across or along these layers will result in very different patterns.

Cross-Cut
Cross-cut slices across the layers, exposing large swatches of colorful variation.

Vein-Cut
Vein-cut is sliced along the layers, exposing the long veins of color.

Bookmatching
When the stones are cut into slices, the order is carefully preserved. This allows customers to buy sequential cuts from one block of stone. These cuts can be arranged side by side, creating a mirrored look with a seamless transition, a practice known as bookmatching. Not all natural stone providers offer bookmatched slabs. Bedrosians is proud to offer a large range of bookmatched slabs.

Nature's Art
Natural stone isn’t made by man, it's formed over time by water, minerals, and lava. Some stones like travertine are created by the slow accumulation of layers of sediment. Other stones, like marble, are formed when rock is subjected to extreme pressure and temperature. Finally, stones like granite are created when rock is melted by magma and reformed into stone when cooled.

The beauty of natural stone comes from the unique variations in color and veining.
Varieties of Stones

Limestone
Limestone has been quarried for centuries and is popular in architecture and many landmarks around the world. Limestone has been commonly used on a floor, backsplash, bathroom, or fireplace.

Travertine
Travertine’s comfortable and neutral color tones along with its various textures complement any space. Travertine is a softer stone that is suitable for a floor, backsplash, bathroom, or fireplace. The more textured travertines are also appropriate for outdoor use.

Onyx
Onyx has a naturally beautiful translucence that is truly unique. Due to this characteristic, it is commonly installed with a light behind it to show off the beautiful colors and patterns. Because it is easily scratched, onyx is most suitable for wall applications like a backsplash, fireplace, or wainscot.

Soapstone
A talc-rich stone with a “soapy” feel, used for hearths, tabletops, chemical-resistant laboratory tops, stove facings, and cladding. Known for its heat, chemical, and stain resistant properties.

Schist
Schist tends to have a unique sparkle due to the minerals found in it. Schist is hard but fragile, so installation may be tricky. However, the final results are beautiful. It is most commonly cut to slab size making it most suitable for countertops.

Dolomite
Dolomite is great for a lighter grey or white look. It’s a stone that is harder than marble, but not as durable as granite. Dolomite makes a great substitute for marble as a kitchen countertop.

Marble
Marble is among the most elegant and luxurious of stones. Marble is a softer stone and can be scratched or damaged by acids used in cooking. Consider using this stone for a floor, backsplash, bathroom, or fireplace, but use with care in areas like kitchen countertops.

Calcareous Stones
Composed mainly of calcium carbonate, a calcareous stone is very sensitive to cleaning solutions that contain acids or alkaline value.
Basalt
A dark colored, igneous rock commercially known as granite when fabricated as dimension stone. The fine-grained and extrusive equivalent of gabbro.

Quartzite
Quartzite can be a great alternative to marble, providing a similar look with more durability. Because of this characteristic, it is often used for kitchen countertops, whereas marble is desired. This hard and durable stone can also be used indoors and outdoors on a floor, backsplash, bathroom, or fireplace.

Granite
Granite comes in many colors and patterns. It is popular for countertops because it is a very hard material that is scratch and heat resistant.

Slate
Slate is a very durable stone, with beautiful color variation. It can be used indoors and outdoors on a floor, backsplash, bathroom, or fireplace.

Siliceous Stones
Composed mainly of silica or quartz-like particles, siliceous stone is considered very durable and relatively easy to clean. It is safe to use “mild” acidic cleaning solutions occasionally.

Under the Surface

Bedrosians® offers a variety of allied products to be installed with tile & stone, including electric floor warming systems, waterproofing, sound control, acoustic, underlayment systems, and more.

Ditra-Heat

DITRA-HEAT is the only electric floor warming system that directly incorporates uncoupling technology to ensure that floors aren’t susceptible to cracked tiles and grout. Cables can be placed wherever heat is desired for customized heating zones, and no leveling compounds are required, which makes for a quick and easy installation.

Advanced Waterproofing

Made of polyethylene, DITRA and DITRA-XL serve as a waterproofing layer that protects moisture-sensitive substrates, such as plywood/OSB. Free space on the underside of the matting provides a route for excess moisture & vapor to prevent damage to the tile layer above.
