Compliant with EUDR standards for Sustainable sourcing

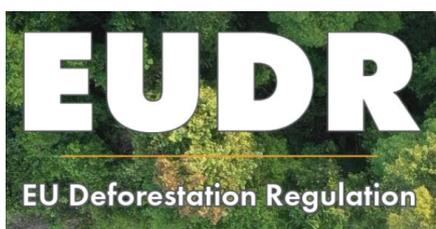

By opting for our Rainforest products, businesses not only meet EUDR compliance but also champion responsible sourcing and environmental preservation.

The EUDR Regulation, set to take effect in December 2024, mandates that operators importing cocoa, coffee, timber, rubber, soy, beef, and palm oil into Europe—and those within Europe using these commodities in their products—ensure they come from deforestation-free sources and comply with relevant legislation before entering the market. This requirement applies to operators of all sizes and product quantities.

Our rainforest products offer a sustainable and traceable solution, committed to forest conservation. Although these products are not explicitly listed among the commodities regulated by the EUDR, they serve as excellent alternatives to those that are listed, such as cocoa butter, which carries significant deforestation risks.

As a Cocoa Butter Equivalent (CBE), Illipe Butter provides a responsible choice that aligns with the regulation goals of sustainability and deforestation prevention. Moreover, our other rainforest products naturally adhere to EUDR requirements, as they are not connected to any deforestation, ensuring compliance with the regulation while promoting environmental responsibility.

"Our rainforest products, including Illipe Butter, provide a sustainable, traceable alternative that meets EUDR's deforestation-free standards, supporting compliance and environmental responsibility."

With our commitment to sustainability and traceability, we offer the expertise and resources needed to help companies navigate the EUDR landscape. By partnering with us, businesses can confidently align with the new regulations while supporting responsible sourcing practices.
