Identification of Material Issues

Based on the processes you have highlighted, what are the material issues that have been identified?

The following are the key changes in 2021 - Animal welfare has increased in importance internally with the development of dual policies tackling animal welfare in our supply chain and in research and development. It has also increased in importance to our stakeholders particularly in the context of B Corporation certification where there are certain expectations around our practices. Labour rights and modern slavery to increase in importance to stakeholders due to investor feedback that this was a critical topic and our management approach and progress was not meeting their expectations. Further to this, as an opportunity for positively impacting the livelihoods of smallholder farmers who are particularly at risk of being in low socioeconomic conditions and therefore reduce inequalities. Responsible marketing to move up in importance to stakeholders due to the increased public awareness from the Call to Action in late 2020 and increased benchmarks with external parties such as B Corporation. However this has lowered in importance to H&H internally as we have pushed back on progress towards WHO Code particularly in China. Talent attraction, retention and development has reduced in materiality to H&H despite an increase in turnover due to macro factors such as market volatility and the COVID pandemic reprioritizing other topics. GHG Emissions and energy to increase in importance particularly with increased reports from the IPCC and initiatives to bring the corporate community into SBTi, and increase our Scope 3 reporting and strategy. Community impact and investment to decrease in materiality due to opportunities less aligned with philanthropy and more aligned in shared value opportunities associated with labour rights and emissions within our supply chain.

As mentioned in the 'Support for Small-Scale Suppliers' and 'tracking impact on workers' question we track all areas of our small-scale supplier Mamabulanjin, including social impacts. How we track the impacts; Before the partnership between H&H and Mamabulanjin began, we built a problem tree (which captures our partnership and identifies the main problems, consequences and causes within the community), developing this web of information with the support of B4SI provided us with the opportunity to address the identified community needs, define the main activities of our partnership and its long-term impacts (this was identified as a lack of empowerment across Indigenous Australians in Broome - using a list tools developed with support from B4SI we measure the workers impacts via a list of key measurable items which include: growth in skillset personal effectiveness quality of life and wellbeing The impact of these list above are directly measured via the CEO and an external organization body via individual and group reflection and discussions with the employees and their communities. Please refer to the 'tracking impact on workers' question for further information on the detailed methodology and process.

This section asks about your environmental footprint to determine which questions are applicable later on in the assessment. It also identifies whether your company's product/service is designed to deliver a specific, material, positive environmental impact, and if so, opens the Environmental Impact Business Model section that is most applicable.

Description of Positive Environmental Product / Service Impact

How would you describe the positive outcome for the environment created by your product/service?

By limiting environmental pollution, the organic production method that we advocate and use, makes it possible to create or re-create a natural balance. This natural balance favors fauna, flora and a living soil suitable for cultivation. It also contributes to better air quality, reduced energy consumption and better water management. Local manufacturing in France limits the impact of transport (SDG number 12) and today more than half of our products are manufactured in France (Turnover at the end of 2021). Recycling our packaging helps to limit the use of limited resources and the pollution of the earth (via untreated waste)

Points Available: 0.00

Environmental Product or Service Impact

Is the environmental impact you've described part of your products' or services' impact (excluding packaging), or is it a part of the way that your company operates?
