

DISCLOSURE MATERIALS

Certified B Corporations must complete a Disclosure Questionnaire to identify potentially sensitive issues related to the company (e.g. historical fines, sanctions, material litigation, or sensitive industry practices).

This component does not affect the company's score on the B Impact Assessment. If the company answers affirmatively to any items in the Disclosure Questionnaire and B Lab deems them to be material, the company must:

- 1) Be transparent about the disclosure issues identified on the company's public B Impact Report
- 2) Describe how the company has addressed this issue.
- 3) Demonstrate that management systems are in place to avoid similar issues from arising in the future.

In all cases, the Standards Advisory council reserves the right to refuse certification if the company is ultimately deemed not to uphold the spirit of the community.

In addition to the voluntary indication of sensitive issues in the Disclosure Questionnaire, companies pursuing Certification also are subject to background checks by B Lab staff. Background checks include a review of public records, news sources, and search engines for company names, brands, executives/founders, and other relevant topics.

Sensitive issues identified through background checks may or may not be within the scope of questions in the Disclosure Questionnaire, but undergo the same review process and are subject to the same possible review by the Standards Advisory Council, including ineligibility for B Corp Certification, required remediation, or disclosure.

This document contains a copy of the company's completed Disclosure Questionnaire and related disclosure documentation provided by the company.

DISCLOSURE QUESTIONNAIRE CATEGORY	Other - Complaints due to wording on labelling
ISSUE DATE	2007-2022
TOPIC	Company had wording on labelling that resulted in complaints of discrimination.
SUMMARY OF ISSUE	"The Honest Kitchen is a pet food company and from 2007 until mid 2022, included the wording ""No ingredients from China"" on all of their product labels. The company implemented this phrasing on their labels since eliminating all Chinese ingredients from their supply chain in 2007/2008 according to a supply chain risk assessment, following industry wide product recalls as a result of Chinese ingredients that were contaminated with melamine and resulted in the death of cats and dogs. The Honest Kitchen did not experience recalls and no dogs or cats have ever been killed as a result of consuming The Honest Kitchen's products, which have never been contaminated with these ingredients. The Honest Kitchen chose to add this label to reassure customers by providing transparency into ingredient origin due to quality concerns and the 2007 recalls. Throughout this time period, the company labels were reviewed by all state regulatory agencies / departments of agriculture, as well as the federal FDA without any negative comment, objection, penalty or request to remove it. In 2021, the company received about 40-50 consumer comments, complaints or requests to remove the statement from their packaging due to concerns of discrimination. The company responded by committing to remove the wording. They also received comments and requests to address this from various retailers. The company did not receive any complaints or comments before 2021.
SIZE/SCOPE OF ISSUE (e.g. $ financial implication, # of individuals affected)	Between the years 2007 and mid 2022, 100% of all their product packaging contained the phrase.
IMPACT ON STAKEHOLDERS	Where the company claims that there was no intent or motive to discriminate, the wording on their products may have resulted in a discriminatory effect. As the company was already in the process of removing the phrasing from their labeling, as part of The Honest Kitchen's verification process, B Lab required the company to remediate by fully removing the phrasing ""No ingredients from China from 100% of their packaging before being eligible to proceed with B Corp Certification. B Lab also suggested that the company consider reconciliatory action and an increase in internal diversity and equality initiatives."

TOPIC	Company had wording on labelling that resulted in complaints of discrimination Cont.
RESOLUTION	In mid 2022, The Honest Kitchen presented B Lab with verification that the remediation had been completed and an additional signed affidavit that stated:
	""The Honest Kitchen has removed all wording stating 'No Ingredients from China' from its packaging files and labels across all SKUs and product lines, and is no longer packing any foods, supplements, or treats into packaging that includes this statement. Any old packaging that did include the statement is being disposed of at the company's expense.""
	Additionally, the company also opted to make a donation as part of reconciliatory action to The Center for Asian Pacific American Women, which focuses on enhancing leadership skills for Asian American and Pacific Islander women.
	The company has implemented a diversity and inclusion training planned as part of their staff trainings. They have also created a Diversity and Inclusion Committee who is responsible for selecting guest speakers at their All Hands meetings and implementing the Diversity, Equity and Inclusion employee survey.
	At the time of the complaints, the company also addressed the entire company to explain the scope for misinterpretation of their ingredient statement, so that everyone is clear on the reasons for the statement's removal as well as reiterating the company's position on anti-discrimination and commitment to inclusivity.
	A public response from the company on the issue is available online at the below link.

In our Employee Handbook, we have established clear guidelines to create an environment that enables all employees to identify and safely report any instances of discrimination, which are immediately addressed Finally, our intent to communicate that no ingredients in our products were from China was an effort in transparency. We recognize that we need to be better in how we communicate this.
