

DISCLOSURE MATERIALS

Certified B Corporations must complete a Disclosure Questionnaire to identify potentially sensitive issues related to the company (e.g. historical fines, sanctions, material litigation, or sensitive industry practices).

This component does not affect the company's score on the B Impact Assessment. If the company answers affirmatively to any items in the Disclosure Questionnaire and B Lab deems them to be material, the company must:

- 1) Be transparent about the disclosure issues identified on the company's public B Impact Report
- 2) Describe how the company has addressed this issue.
- 3) Demonstrate that management systems are in place to avoid similar issues from arising in the future.

In all cases, the Standards Advisory council reserves the right to refuse certification if the company is ultimately deemed not to uphold the spirit of the community.

In addition to the voluntary indication of sensitive issues in the Disclosure Questionnaire, companies pursuing Certification also are subject to background checks by B Lab staff. Background checks include a review of public records, news sources, and search engines for company names, brands, executives/founders, and other relevant topics.

Sensitive issues identified through background checks may or may not be within the scope of questions in the Disclosure Questionnaire, but undergo the same review process and are subject to the same possible review by the Standards Advisory Council, including ineligibility for B Corp Certification, required remediation, or disclosure.

This document contains a copy of the company's completed Disclosure Questionnaire and related disclosure documentation provided by the company.

| ТОРІС                                | Der Speigel, the German magazine released an article making allegations of negative social and environment impacts in the Innocent drinks supply chain.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |  |  |
| SUMMARY OF ISSUE                     | "The article questions the nature and practices of the company, who is owned by the parent company, Coca Cola. Several allegations are made about negative supply chain impacts such as:  - Sourcing from supplier farmers who operate in water scarce areas and compete with local communities for water, and use large amounts of pesticides contrary to company claims.  - Precarious working conditions for female farm workers in Spain  - Exploitative labour and not paying minimum wages to supplier farms, as well as failing to pay a fair price to suppliers and engaging in the cancellation of contracts.  Furthermore, the journalist alleged that the Innocent products were not healthy due to their use of pesticides on farms and high sugar content. Other allegations were also made about the recyclability of the company products and questions the use of bio plastics made from sugarcane." |  |  |
| RESOLUTION                           | "B Lab reviews complaints that are credible, specific and material and has a publicly available complaints mechanism on their website at https://www.bcorporation.net/en-us/standards/complaints/.  To better understand the details of the article, B Lab connected with Innocent to discuss the allegations. B Lab did not pursue investigation related to the complaint and Innocent opted for voluntary disclosure to share their response to the allegations in the article."                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |  |  |

B Corp Certification - Disclosure Questionnaire Documentation

PROVIDED BY: Innocent Drinks UPDATED AS OF: 03/18/2022

IMPLEMENTED MGT PRACTICES

"Relationship with Coca Cola: Innocent operates as a separate entity from the parent company, Coca Cola. They work together to achieve their core objectives such as developing prototypes for their 'Future Bottle' that will contain 50% rPET and 50% plant plastic.

Nutritional Value of Drinks: Innocent claims that their products contain the same natural sugars that are found in fruit and vegetables. They do not add sugar to any of their products and all of their drinks are a source of at least 1 micro-nutrient.

rPET Packaging: Innocent made a 100% recycled plastic bottle back in 2006 but revaluted due to the long-term sustainable sourcing of 100% rPET bottles. Under advice from WRAP, they decided to focus on increasing recycled content across their range and currently have 50% rPET as standard. They recognise the challenges in sourcing 100% rPET and push for higher recycling rates across Europe (which currently ranges from <30% to >90% depending on country) to ensure better supply in the future. They plan to use either 100% rPET or 100% rPET from plant plastics when they can maintain standards and reduce the overall footprint within the LCA of their bottles in the most sustainable way. All of their bottles are 100% recyclable. They have an ambition to collect and recycle 70% of their bottles by 2023.

Responsible Sourcing including FSA: Innocent source from thousands of farms of all shapes and sizes and therefore focus on getting all of their ingredients verified to SAI Platform's Farm Sustainability Assessment (FSA) standard or an equivalent standard that has been benchmarked against FSA. The FSA enables food and drink businesses to assess, improve, and validate on-farm sustainability in their supply chains. Built around a simple set of questions to farmers, the FSA standardises farm assessment. By 2023, 100% of their ingredients will be sustainably sourced (and they are currently at 90%).

These assessments include how pesticides and other plant protection products are used on farm. Any such products must be officially registered and permitted for use. The standards include topics such as integrated pest management, biodiversity management plans and farm management practices following the principles of 'right product, right time, right place, right amount'. Innocent has also launched a beacon project to quantify farm income while reducing pesticide use and taking other steps to promote natural pollinators. The project currently focuses on apple and orange, their two biggest ingredients. A recent study from Watson also confirmed through independent testing that no pesticides were found in their drinks. All of their processing sites will have a full social audit and all farms will be verified against SAI Platform's FSA standard or a benchmarked equivalent by 2023. The social auditing process includes checks on payment of minimum wage to ensure compliance within the supply chain.

Legal Minimum Wage: Innocent is committed to protecting human rights throughout their supply chain and require that legal minimum wage is paid by their suppliers. This is an expectation and requirement of their suppliers who are legally bound through their contract to adhere to Innocent's human rights policy available at: https://www.innocentdrinks.ie/content/dam/innocent/ie/en/files/innocent-human-rights-policy.pdf.

Deposit Return Scheme: Innocent is in support of systems that increases the recycling rates for plastic, makes economic sense and improves the quality of recycled plastics so they can be used more widely. Disposable packaging for fruit and vegetable juices as well as various other beverages have so far been excluded by law from the mandatory deposit. The amendment of the Packaging Act in Germany on 1 January 2022 now closes the recycling loop and makes it possible to turn 1.5 billion used bottles into new ones every year. The German deposit system has a recycling rate of around 98%.

Demand of the German "Bundestag" and their PETition: Innocent recognise that the motion to expand the deposit on disposables in the state parliament was already an item on the agenda when they launched their petition in October 2019. Firstly, they used the petition to attract attention and show the support of the fruit juice industry. Secondly, with the help of political advisors, they talked to many representatives of all parties from the Federal Environment Agency and the chairpersons in the petitions committee. They claim they spent time and resources in support of this motion and was the first company to raise the voice PRO deposit.

Although the new law came into force on 1 January 2022, Innocent had already changed the EAN numbers on the 1 October 2021 and joined the deposit system with its disposable PET bottles. Joining the German single-use deposit helps ensure that nearly all Innocent bottles can reach their full recycling potential. By joining ahead of time, more than 15 million innocent bottles were saved through the single use deposit systems.

Bioplastics- Brazilian Sugar Cane: Innocent consider using plant-based plastic in their bottles as the next step to making their bottles more sustainable. As the material is new and not easily available at scale, they are introducing it gradually. To ensure it does not negatively impact agriculture and food sources, there is a focus on incorporating lessons learned from biofuels. The Bioplastics Feedstock Alliance (BFA) was formed by a number of consumer brands, including Coca-Cola, and guided by WWF. The alliance looks to use science and critical thinking to encourage production of bioplastics feedstocks in an environmentally responsible, socially beneficial and economically viable manner. For more info see: http://bioplasticfeedstockalliance.org/

Spanish Strawberries Donana National Park: Innocent is committing to reducing their water footprint. They have a decade long water conservation project in Spain with two of their major strawberry growers to figure out ways of reducing their water use − and help to protect the Doñana National Park in Andalusia. This conservation project is now a multi-stakeholder initiative run by the SAI Platform. 77 berry farmers across the Huelva region in Spain are taking part, which makes up 10% of all berry production. It's now called the FerDonana project, and involves training farmers and workers, tracking irrigation through the seasons, and applying new technology platforms to help guide on-the-ground decision-makers. At the end of the project in 2020, farmers were able to use 15-20% less water while still boosting their berry crops by up to 50%. A legacy programme has now been set up, with an investment of €2.2m from the EU and other businesses. This money will help to spread the land and water management learnings to other regions of Spain, as well as Portugal and France.

Supplier Relationship with Dreher: Innocent has processes in place both before contracting with a partner and during any supplier contract term, to ensure that associated businesses meet high standards. Dreher have been subjected to this process and they currently have no reason to suggest that they do not meet these standards. Should information be shared with Innocent which demonstrates that any of their suppliers or partners are not meeting their high standards, they then take immediate steps to rectify the situation.
