FOR THE DAD INTO CONTEMPORARY ART

Casa Obsidiana Tequila, from $190-$330

Casa Obsidiana, a creative project the Beckmann-Gonzalez and Boisset families, is what happens when tequila is as much about the vessel as the spirit inside. I spotted these bottles being poured at this year's Pebble Beach Food & Wine festival and fell instantly smitten. Each expression is sculpted by contemporary Mexican artist Adán Paredes: the Blanco channels an agave piña, the Reposado flows like water in motion, and the Añejo is a tribute to Mexican cubism in volcanic black. There's also a cool black circle of obsidian on each bottle, representing wholeness and infinity. Co-founder Roberto Beckmann calls it "a modern Mexico" in liquid form. For the dad whose bar cart doubles as a gallery wall, this is the collection he didn't know he was missing.
