

delish

We Tried All The Celebrity Rosé — And Had One Clear Favorite

For when you want a celebrity-endorsed buzz.

by GABBY ROMERO JUL 25, 2022

SARAH CENICEROS

It seems like almost every celebrity has their own line of wines or spirits these days. We're hard pressed to walk into a wine shop without spotting a famous name on at least one label. With all the star power behind these wine brands, we wanted to see how they stacked up so you know what to pick the next time you're looking for a celebrity-endorsed buzz.

GABBY ROMERO

For this taste test, we focused on celebrity rosé. We tasted rosés from a wide range of famous faces, from Post Malone to Brad Pitt, and rated each one on a scale of 1 to 5. Keep reading to see whose wine earned our top spot.

LVE French Rosé – John Legend

3/5

LVE

Singer John Legend partnered with Raymond Vineyards in Napa Valley for his line of LVE wines. While the winery is based in the United States, LVE sources their grapes from the South of France. “This bottle looks so fancy!” said one of our tasters. There are notes of peach blossom, berries, and stone fruit, but no flavor dominates the other. We all think it's a super versatile, light wine that would pair well with any food and would be the fan-favorite at a party. It's the wine to drink when you want to "rosé all day." (2020 LVE French Rosé, $25 at lvewines.com)