She and husband John Legend became the proud parents of two children last month, when she welcomed the birth of her son Miles Theodore.

And Chrissy Teigen, 32, was back on the social circuit looking as sensational as ever on Thursday evening, when she attended the launch of her 39-year-old husband's new rosé wine brand LVE in Beverly Hills, California.

Accompanied by her two-year-old daughter Luna Simone, the model wowed as she entered the exclusive bash, which included an intimate Airbnb Concert, wearing a sleeveless champagne pink gown, which flattered her curves.

Night out: Chrissy Teigen and her two-year-old daughter Luna joined husband John Legend at the launch of his new rosé wine during an Airbnb Concert in Beverly Hills on Thursday night

The stunning Utah native, who appeared to leave her youngest offspring at home for the evening, complemented her ensemble with large statement drop earrings, while opting to largely forgo other sparkling accessories.

With her chestnut brown tresses falling beyond her shoulders in soft and lustrous waves, she highlighted her natural beauty with a rich palette of makeup that included smokey eyeshadow, blush and deep pink lipstick.

Meanwhile, her husband John caught the eye in a powder pink suit, which he teamed with a blue-and-pink patterned shirt, which he teamed with a pair of box fresh white hybrid shoes.

Cheers! The singer, 39, raised a glass of his newly launched wine as he toasted the attendees

However, their eldest offspring stole the show, wearing a frilly patterned blue dress, while her curly mane was styled in adorable pigtails.

During the event, which was attended by Kris Jenner and her boyfriend Corey Gamble, John was accompanied by a live orchestra as he sat at a piano and belted his way through a medley of his biggest hits.

Ahead of attending the event, Chrissy amused her more than 18million Instagram followers, when she took to the image-sharing site to promote her husband's wine. Sharing a snapshot of a bottle of the beverage set on an elegant table, she began: 'My husband, John, asked me to post this because I have a much bigger social following than him. He said just something short and to the point. I said "OK John!" Then had my agents follow up with a comprehensive pricing list.

'Did he want me to keep this up for just today? A week? Forever? Did he want me to take a photo with the product, or simply the product alone? Who is the photographer you are sending over? Or are we using an outside location?

'These are important questions in an Instagram deal and a marriage. While I will not discuss the terms of our agreement (I legally cannot) I will say that my husband, John, has been working on this rosé for a very long time and it is delightful. Really.

'You can drink it with fish, chicken, broccoli, candy, Chinese food, cereal, chilli, corn, hot dogs, rice, anything, out of a glass, bowl, pitcher, ladle, cupped hands, hat.

'It can be stored in the fridge, on a dining table, a counter, in a cabinet, an end table, really wherever you want! congratulations, John!!!'

The Swimsuit Illustrated beauty, who is to celebrate five years of marriage to John in September, concluded the hilarious post by sharing a link to the brand's website.
