

NAPA VALLEY'S GREENEST WINERIES

WINE & WINERIES / JANUARY 28, 2016

Last year, the Napa Valley Vintners (NVV) nonprofit winery trade association pledged that every eligible member will be in the Napa Green Land or Winery program by the end of the year 2020. This program was developed and administered by NVV to protect and enhance the regional watershed including wild land, roadways, stream banks, drainages, and other vulnerable areas.

Now, you can gain a better understanding of the wine industry's most comprehensive environmental sustainability program by creating your own Napa Green Certified Land and Winery Tour. More than 100 Napa Valley wineries participate in the Napa Green program, many open without an appointment. Here are just a few.

Raymond Vineyard and Cellar – Leadership in Biodynamic® principles; EV charging stations; and the winery is powered by renewable solar energy, making it one of the largest solar-powered wineries in Napa. Guests can learn about these sustainable practices in a self-guided “Theater of Nature” interactive tour of biodynamic farming, where ten percent of the estate has been set aside to preserve biodiversity.
