

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

ARTS & CULTURE | FOOD & COOKING

11 Holiday Gifts for Food Lovers—Each One With a Human Story Behind It

From a hand-hammered copper ladle to a chef-recommended Italian pasta-making course, these gifts celebrate and elevate the work of putting food on the table

By Jane Black, Aleksandra Crapanzano, Matthew Kronsberg, Nina Molina and Lettie Teague
Nov. 12, 2024

Tequilas as Beautiful as Their Bottles

Long after your giftee gets through a bottle of Casa Obsidiana tequila, the ceramic vessel itself, handcrafted in Oaxaca, Mexico, will undoubtedly remain on display or serve elegantly as a pitcher or vase. Fortunately, this trio of tequilas more than lives up to its packaging. The Blanco is floral, peppery and surprisingly rounded. The lush Reposado, aged in French oak casks, offers notes of caramelized citrus. And the Anejo, full-bodied and a little spicy, delivers a deliciously roasted flavor. Casa Obsidiana Tequilas, from $190 each

<https://www.wsj.com/arts-culture/food-cooking/holiday-food-gifts-2024-8809f099>