

+ LAKEWOOD RANCH UNVEILS WILDWOOD CELLAR

The Lakewood Ranch Golf and Country Club last week announced its new wine room, the Wildwood Cellar.

The new room includes an antique wine press, smelling oils, antique cork removers, wine urns, artwork, the silhouette of an etched wine vineyard on the large arched glass front entry and oak barrels that were shipped from the Deloach Vineyards in California. The ceiling features a hand-painted mural that brings the sky into the room and gives one the feeling of being outdoors.

"At the beginning of the project, we challenged ourselves to engage all five senses in the development of the room," said General Manager Wayne Piazza.

"It would not be just a room where we could serve fine dinners and wines, but one that would involve guests in taste, smell, sight and sound, resulting in an overwhelming feeling of what it is like to be immersed in a signature room dedicated to the enjoyment of fine wine and food."

The Wildwood Cellar is named after the various woods used in its development and is available to area businesses and the community for private parties and special events.
