Restaurant responses to Covid-19

The governor has encouraged all restaurants to close or switch to takeout, and some offer delivery. Here are some that we know about. The situation is very fluid, however.

Assume that fast-food outlets are offering takeout, some delivery, but not dine-in service.

If you're picking up at the restaurant or getting delivery, be sure to tip well. The staff really needs it.

Wineries

Tasting rooms have closed, but many wineries offer pick-up or delivery and many have special deals right now.

Some hand-deliver wines locally, temporarily.

Of interest to local wineries, wineries nationwide reported in last year's survey by WBM/Silicon Valley Bank, Insights into Successful Consumer Wine Sales, 47 percent of their wine club members are locals.

However, most people probably aren't looking for expensive wines right now and most Napa Valley wineries don't focus on the lower end of the market. Few even have wines selling under $25.

Some wineries are hosting virtual tastings online. Fans can have wines delivered (or buy them elsewhere) and taste along with the winemaker and others.

These are offers from wineries that notified us.

See the winery websites for more information.
